It's School Day For Members Of Legislature

'Three R's' Bill Heads List Of Matters Up For Vote Of Solons

COLUMBUS (AP)—It's "school day" in the Ohio Legislature. The Senate has scheduled a floor vote for today on its amended version of a House-approved bill to require Ohio schools to teach basic subjects, the so-called "Three R's" bill.

The House will vote on a bill to put teeth in the state's traditional ban against high school secret societies—to make expulsion from school the punishment for membership in high school fraternities and sororities.

Both measures were recommended by the Ohio School Survey Committee which made a 16-month study of the state's schools.

Both bills may have some tough sledding in their floor tests today. The "wet-dry" issue is hounding the "Three R's" bill and probably will come into the open once more on the Senate floor.

As the measure cleared the House, it provided only for restoration of the law as it stood before a whole new school code was adopted in 1943. The law was that the schools "shall" teach basic subjects like reading, spelling, arithmetic and science. In 1943, a "sleeper amendment" among some 350 others changed the "shall" to "may."

MORE THAN a year ago, a couple dozen civic and patriotic groups in Ohio became aware of the change "may" back to "shall" and nothing more. And that's the way the bill passed the House.

But in the Senate Education Committee, representatives of Ohio's brewers objected to one requirement, that the schools "shall" teach the harmful effects of narcotics and alcoholic beverages. So the committee changed the wording of the bill to provide that schools:

"shall teach the harmful effects of alcohol."

3 Men Guilty In Tax-Fix Investigation

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry W. (The Dutchman) Grunewald and Daniel A. Bolich, former assistant commissioner of internal revenue, have been convicted by a federal court jury of a $160,000 tax-fix bribery conspiracy.

Max Halperin, Manhattan tax attorney, was convicted with them.

After the seven-week trial, the jury acquitted two codefendants, Max Steinberg, former group chief in the upper Manhattan division of the Internal Revenue Service, and Harry T. Scherm, a former agent in the same office.

Grunewald, 62-year-old former Washington influence peddler, faces a possible maximum of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Bolich, 54, a Brooklyn resident, faces a possible maximum sentence of eight years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Halperin, 69, who lives in Manhattan, could draw up to 20 years in prison and $25,000 in fines.

The government charged that the five defendants received $200,000 in bribes to halt action in two income tax cases. Bolich was accused of quashing two possible tax prosecutions at the request of Grunewald and Halperin.

The indictment said the money was paid by the New York dress-manufacturing firm of Pattullo Modes ($140,000) and the Gotham Beef Co. ($60,000).

THE GROUP of district youngsters pictured above, as they gathered on the courthouse steps in Circleville before leaving for Summer camp last August, illustrates some of the outstanding work being accomplished by the Pickaway County Crippled Children's Society. Such camping groups represent only one of many services financed through sale of Easter Seals. Shown in the group are, left to right: Front row—John K. Baker, Susie Alexander, Sandra Fouch, Jimmie Bost, and Carl Baird. Back row—Dwight Stone, Clarence Thompson, Lois Walters, Sandra Reed, and Emma Giffen. The Baird boy is from the Ashville area and young Stone lives near Orient. The others live in or around Circleville. Jerry Spangler, of Tilton, who also went to camp, was not present for the photograph.

Reorganization Being Set For Safety Group

An attempt to reorganize the Pickaway County Traffic Safety Committee will be made soon by William Ammer, county prosecutor.

Ammer said that the group, which lists 30 to 40 names, has not been active during the past year. He said one of the reasons is that a permanent chairman was never chosen. Ammer had served pro tem.

Taking note of the alarming increase in traffic deaths for the county this year, Ammer said that the matter should be brought to the attention of the county commissioners. He said there are specific intersections he has in mind for special consideration.

In connection with the county's traffic problem, local state representative Ed Wallace indicated recently that he planned to ask for a reduction in the speed limit along a portion of Route 23 south of Circleville. He referred to the section near Gold Cliff Park where numerous serious accidents and several fatalities have occurred.

WHILE STATISTICS show that Ohio has seen a reduction in the number of traffic deaths as compared with 1954, Pickaway County has experienced an upward trend. With three months not yet completed, there have already been seven district traffic deaths. There were 14 for the entire year of 1954. At the present rate, this would mean a 100 per cent increase.

Warmer Trend Being Felt In Middlewest

CHICAGO (AP)—Skies were clear and there was a warming trend over most of the mid-continent today but it was a little chilly in parts of the East and South.

Snow flurries were reported in New York state and northern New England, areas hit by storms over the weekend.

Temperatures were 5 to 15 degrees above yesterday morning readings from Texas northward to the Northern Plains and Great Lakes region. Freezing weather was confined to the area east of the Mississippi Valley and north of the Ohio Valley. It was near zero in Grand Marais, Mich.

Readings in the Gulf region ranged between the middle 30s north to the 40s or low 50s in Florida and along the coast.

It was near freezing early today in Mobile, Ala., and Raleigh, N.C. The recent cold weather in the South caused an estimated 60 million dollars damage to orchards and crops. The peach crop was virtually destroyed in Georgia, the Carolinas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia.

Stassen To Confer With Italy Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, recently named special White House assistant on disarmament, has a date today to discuss Italian views on the subject with visiting Premier Mario Scelba.

Scelba and his foreign minister Gaetano Martino were reported anxious to urge American leaders to try a new approach toward convincing Russia to agree to world disarmament.

Parking Lot Plan Moving Forward

City Chamber Prepares To Buy Another W. Franklin Property

Circleville Chamber of Commerce today announced the second major step in a long-range plan designed to ease the shortage of off-street parking space in and near downtown area.

At a special meeting of the Chamber's board of directors, officers of the big civic body were authorized to pick up an option the Chamber held on the Kerns property on W. Franklin St. The Kerns property adjoins on the east property which the Chamber purchased last month.

In the transaction last month, the Chamber revealed that the Bowers property had been bought as nucleus for a large parking lot planned for that spot. Both properties are on the northern side of W. Franklin St., and immediately east of the first alley east of Scioto St.

While of major importance, it was emphasized that purchase of the two properties is only one of the preliminary moves in the overall plan. Both properties are now occupied by dwellings which will have to be razed before the actual parking lot construction work begins.

Nebraska Pen Rebels Feel New Pressure

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Pressure mounted on nine insurgent Nebraska Penitentiary convicts today to surrender themselves and two captive guards.

Hunger and the apparent futility of their position were surmised to be weighing heavily on the rebels. Nobody knew exactly what was going on in the square, three-story penitentiary building in which the convicts and their hostages have been sequestered since Sunday forenoon.

But Gov. Victor E. Anderson said last night he was confident the men, whose last meal was Sunday breakfast, had no food cached in the building.

He was certain too, he said, the guards, with whom he talked early yesterday afternoon, remained safe.

In an exchange of notes yesterday, the convicts made nine "demands" covering such things as three hot meals daily, definite sentences instead of indeterminate sentences in the jail, adequate medical attention and "dismissal of all guards that we can prove to be sadists and—or head beaters."

Gov. Anderson replied by letter that the demands would be "carefully considered" but that nothing will be done until the guards are freed unharmed.

Byrd To Command South Pole Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd will make his fifth visit to the antarctic later this year as head of a U. S. scientific expedition.

The expedition, announced late yesterday by the White House, will set out in November and continue into 1957. Byrd will be 67 when the expedition begins.

The Navy is organizing the trip to set up scientific observation sites for use in the International Geophysical Year, 1957-58. During that period, scientists from many countries will conduct simultaneous studies in earth sciences.

General On Tour

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert S. Schow, deputy chief of U. S. Army intelligence, arrived today for a three-day visit.

IN THE latest action by the Chamber, steering the project through a special committee, officers were authorized to borrow sufficient funds to buy the Kerns property house and lot.

Simultaneous with its move to acquire the necessary land, the Chamber is launching a survey of parking lots, and related planning, in other cities of Circleville's size.

It was pointed out that many separate details will have to be included in that study—ranging from the type of surfacing and meters used to the overall financing.

When the information is gathered local efforts will be advanced closer to the construction stage.

The two lots on W. Franklin St., a Chamber spokesman said, are big enough to provide a parking lot for approximately 65 cars. Access will be from the nearby alley, as well as the street.

There was no official estimate as to when the project will take definite form as a parking lot, but an unofficial version was that this stage may be reached fairly early next year.

The Chamber will hold its regular quarterly membership meeting at 6:45 p. m. Tuesday in the Meca Restaurant. It was assured further details of the latest parking lot move will be disclosed at that gathering.

This May Help You Save Some Money On Income Taxes

Most people will find income tax filing time this year a little easier on their pocketbooks—and their nerves. For one thing, the new laws reflect reduction of about 10 per cent in tax rates that went into effect Jan. 1, 1954.

But just as important are the many changes aimed at helping people who particularly need relief—that were put into effect when Congress last August overhauled the tax code, its first freshening up in more than 50 years.

Congress at that time set April 15 instead of March 15 as the deadline for making final payments. But it is already later than you think. Don't put off the task until you have to do it under last-minute pressure.

Meanwhile, in a series of small illustrated features, The Herald will touch upon some of the major changes that may help save you money.

Israel Resigned To Condemnation

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Israeli diplomatic sources acknowledged today that their government faced certain condemnation by the U. N. Security Council for the Gaza battle.

Such censure was proposed late yesterday by the United States, Britain and France. The 11-nation council was called to meet this afternoon to resume debate on the Feb. 28 clash in which 38 Egyptians, eight Israelis died.

While Israel's delegation withheld formal comment on the Western resolution, one Israeli source said the proposal appeared certain to win almost solid approval from the council. There was some speculation the resolution might be adopted by nightfall.

Panamanian Congress Declares Ex-President Guilty In Assassination

Wallace's Plan To Aid Baldies Has Backfire

'Co-Sponsors' Say It Brought Howl From Barbers

Glaring publicity, reflected off bald heads in the dignified General Assembly, brought an apology in Columbus last night from Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative.

Wallace said he offered a pro-rated hair-cutting proposal in the spirit of fun without consulting eight other members whose names also appeared as sponsors. It was evident today that not all of the eight thought it was funny.

The proposal, advocated at least twice in recent months by The Herald before it was mentioned in the legislature, pointed out that the full rate for haircuts is unfair when there is little hair to cut. When the objection was outlined some time ago by The Herald, a spokesman for barbers complained that "more research" is needed when trimming a bald-headed man—figuratively.

The barber spokesman also declared that such cases require special effort, since a thin fringe permits only a narrow margin for seissors errors. "With a full head of hair," he explained, "we can hide our mistakes easier."

NEVERTHELESS, the move to place the whole matter before the state legislature did not meet with unanimous humor.

Wallace disclosed that some of the "co-sponsors" got in bad with their hometown barbers.

The Pickaway County representative took the floor after Rep. Griffith Evans, Portage County Republican, reported that barbers in Kent called him from the dinner table last weekend to protest the resolution. Wallace is a Democrat.

Ohio Assembly Passes Some Minor Bills

COLUMBUS (AP)—Last night, as Ohio's 169 legislators returned for their 13th week, these were the major developments:

The Senate passed without dissent a House-approved bill to extend for two more years an assessment against intrastate utilities to pay for administration of the state utility laws. The assessment produces about $600,000 in the two-year period.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to allow the state highway department to hire outside engineers to lay out and supervise highway projects. Two years ago, the Legislature authorized employment of outside engineers to draw plans for such projects.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to allow school boards to hire retired teachers as regular teachers—an effort to recruit several hundred teachers badly needed by Ohio schools.

The Senate completed legislative action on a bill requiring telephone party-line subscribers to yield use of their lines in emergencies. The Senate agreed to minor House amendments.

Lakes Ship Due To Try Straits

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Comet, a vessel owned by Cleveland Tankers, is scheduled tomorrow to make the season's first passage of the Straits of Mackinac.

Escorted by the Coast Guard ice breaker Mackinaw, the Comet will move eastward through the straits between lakes Michigan and Huron. Thursday, the 666-foot John G. Munson of the Michigan Limestone fleet is to sail westward through the straits.

WAVERLY (AP)—Lugene Johnson, 63, was sentenced to a life term in Ohio Penitentiary yesterday for the Nov. 6, 1954 slaying of Mrs. Miltha Jones, his neighbor, and James A. Lett.

Johnson was charged originally with first degree murder. But yesterday his attorney entered for him a plea of guilty to second degree murder.

Ike Doubts Reds Ready For Attack

April 15 Strike In Formosa Area Not Expected, White House Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower does not believe Red China is prepared to cause any major conflict in the Formosa Strait in the weeks just ahead.

The President does not share the view that a Red Chinese attack might be made on the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu by April 15. He has rejected this estimate of the situation by some military sources.

Information reaching the White House indicates Red China lacks air bases and supplies to back up an amphibious assault on the islands, just off the mainland.

These views were outlined by an authoritative administration source in a discussion of key current issues in the foreign relations field.

As for the possibility of a Big Four conference, the source said the administration sees all signs as pointing to a meeting of some type. The question is when, where and what form it will take.

ON THE QUESTION of war or peace in the Formosa Strait, the source said the administration was disturbed by the weekend report that the Communists would be capable of an early attack on Quemoy and Matsu.

The report, the source said, gave an erroneous and possibly alarming picture which might lead some to believe the United States would soon be in a full-scale shooting war with atomic weapons.

Also, he said, it was felt that such talk could damage the American position with some foreign nations that take issue with parts of U. S. policy in the Formosa area.

The source said Eisenhower does not minimize the danger in the Far East. He was said to feel that the situation is likely to become increasingly serious and that nobody can predict what Red China might do.

A decision whether the United States would go to the defense of the offshore islands rests with Eisenhower. The decision probably would come before any actual attack but it hasn't been made yet, the source said.

On this point, Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today he thinks the American people will support "whatever decision President Eisenhower is compelled to make" between war and peace in the Pacific.

But Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he feels Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles are joining Senate Republican leaders in turning the GOP into a "war party."

SPARKMAN SAID in his view the United States now stands "on the verge of war" in the Far East. Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, and Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, who heads the Senate GOP Policy Committee, have said they regard the offshore islands as essential to Formosa's defense and have advocated fighting to hold them.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) in a Senate speech yesterday called for Eisenhower to "declare before another day has passed what America will do in the event Quemoy and Matsu are attacked." He said the administration had made "a strategic blunder of the first magnitude" in not announcing its intentions.

THE CLOUD that went up from the detonation, set off from a 500-foot tower, was flat across the top, unlike the usual towering clouds seen in the past here. It appeared that there was an icecap atop the cloud.

The Atomic Energy Commission had scheduled today's shot originally for last March 14 but unfavorable weather had forced postponement of the major detonation.

At Cedar City, Utah, 170 miles northeast of the test site, residents reported that the shock today was the greatest they had felt from an atomic detonation. In that city the air vibrated from the shock.

The predawn tower blast was the first of two shots scheduled for today. An air drop of a less powerful device was planned later.

Lakes Ship Due To Try Straits

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Comet, a vessel owned by Cleveland Tankers, is scheduled tomorrow to make the season's first passage of the Straits of Mackinac.

Escorted by the Coast Guard ice breaker Mackinaw, the Comet will move eastward through the straits between lakes Michigan and Huron. Thursday, the 666-foot John G. Munson of the Michigan Limestone fleet is to sail westward through the straits.

Guizado Given Term In Prison As Sentence

National Assembly Votes 45-8 Against Successor To Slain Jose Remon

PANAMA (AP)—Panama's Congress, the National Assembly, today convicted impeached President Jose Ramon Guizado as an accessory in the assassination of his predecessor, President Jose Antonio Remon. It sentenced him to six years and eight months in prison.

In addition, the Assembly formally stripped Guizado of his rank as President and banned him from public office. The verdict was reached at a secret session of 14½ hours at the Palace of Justice.

Sources in close touch with the National Assembly said the 53 deputies reached their verdict before dawn by a 45-8 vote.

A two-thirds vote of the Assembly membership was required for both conviction and sentence.

Acquittal for Guizado, a wealthy 56-year-old civil engineer who was educated in Tennessee at Vanderbilt University, would have meant that he could have reclaimed the presidency. Ricardo Arias Espinosa, second vice president under Remon, replaced him Jan. 16.

THE PROSECUTION during the trial charged that Guizado plotted the assassination with Ruben Miro, a socially prominent lawyer, to grab power and make millions. The prosecutor demanded a maximum sentence of 35 years imprisonment—20 years as a principal in the crime and 15 more years under a penal code provision covering acts against the safety of a president.

Previously officials had indicated the prosecution would seek a 10-year sentence, the maximum for an accomplice in a homicide.

The defense argued that Guizado was being tried for political reasons because a clique wished to remove him from office. It argued that Miro alone had plotted the killing.

Miro first confessed the slaying and implicated Guizado. The impeached president pleaded innocent and Miro later repudiated his confession.

The Assembly began its deliberations about 7 p. m. last night, several hours after defense attorney Felipe Juan Escobar delivered the last argument in the eight-day trial.

In his confession, Miro said Guizado had promised him a cabinet post.

Miro and others named as his accomplices are scheduled to be tried by the regular criminal courts, probably in April.

Ammer Family Plans To Sell Store Here

A spokesman for the family of the late Moses Ammer, well known downtown merchant who died here last week, said today that plans are being made to sell the Ammer store, located on S. Court St. near Main.

Sale of the store, which has been closed since last Wednesday, will be arranged for the near future. The confectionery and grocery establishment reopened today for business.

William Ammer, Pickaway County prosecutor and one of three surviving sons, has been named administrator of his father's estate.

Meanwhile, under authority of probate court, business will be continued at the store.

Moses Ammer, it was disclosed, signed a five-year lease for the premises shortly before he became seriously ill several weeks ago.

Ag Funds Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House sent to the Senate by voice vote yesterday a bill carrying $78,625,391 in cash and $388 million in lending authority for the Agriculture Department. It included about $27½ million more than the department had asked.

BIRDS EYE VIEW OF GOPHER TENEMENT

Since a certain author named M. Goose neglected to write any stories for children about gophers, I will. Once upon a time there was a gopher named Elwood who lived in a small hole in back of a greeny tree near a ripply field of tall corn that was plowed by two horses who were owned by a nice farmer who raised the tall corn to feed to the two horses so they could plow the ripply field which was near a greeny tree that grew right in front of a small hole in which lived a gopher named Elwood who swiped 24.7 percent of the corn annually.

MORAL: This farmer should learn something about crop rotation, and gopher extermination.

CHICAGO (AP)—Skies were clear and there was a warming trend over most of the mid-continent today but it was a little chilly in parts of the East and South.

Snow flurries were reported in New York state and northern New England, areas hit by storms over the weekend.

Temperatures were 5 to 15 degrees above yesterday morning readings from Texas northward to the Northern Plains and Great Lakes region. Freezing weather was confined to the area east of the Mississippi Valley and north of the Ohio Valley. It was near zero in Grand Marais, Mich.

Readings in the Gulf region ranged between the middle 30s north to the 40s or low 50s in Florida and along the coast. It was near freezing early today in Mobile, Ala., and Raleigh, N.C. The recent cold weather in the South caused an estimated 60 million dollars damage to orchards and crops. The peach crop was virtually destroyed in Georgia, the Carolinas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia.

Stassen To Confer With Italy Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, recently named special White House assistant on disarmament, has a date today to discuss Italian views on the subject with visiting Premier Mario Scelba.

Scelba and his foreign minister Gaetano Martino were reported anxious to urge American leaders to try a new approach toward convincing Russia to agree to world disarmament.

Parking Lot Plan Moving Forward

City Chamber Prepares To Buy Another W. Franklin Property

Circleville Chamber of Commerce today announced the second major step in a long-range plan designed to ease the shortage of off-street parking space in and near downtown area.

At a special meeting of the Chamber's board of directors, officers of the big civic body were authorized to pick up an option the Chamber held on the Kerns property on W. Franklin St. The Kerns property adjoins on the east property which the Chamber purchased last month.

In the transaction last month, the Chamber revealed that the Bowers property had been bought as nucleus for a large parking lot planned for that spot. Both properties are on the northern side of W. Franklin St., and immediately east of the first alley east of Scioto St.

While of major importance, it was emphasized that purchase of the two properties is only one of the preliminary moves in the overall plan. Both properties are now occupied by dwellings which will have to be razed before the actual parking lot construction work begins.

Nebraska Pen Rebels Feel New Pressure

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Pressure mounted on nine insurgent Nebraska Penitentiary convicts today to surrender themselves and two captive guards.

Hunger and the apparent futility of their position were surmised to be weighing heavily on the rebels. Nobody knew exactly what was going on in the square, three-story penitentiary building in which the convicts and their hostages have been sealed since Sunday forenoon.

But Gov. Victor E. Anderson said last night he was confident the men, whose last meal was Sunday breakfast, had no food cached in the building.

He was certain too, he said, the guards, with whom he talked early yesterday afternoon, remained safe.

In an exchange of notes yesterday, the convicts made nine "demands" covering such things as three hot meals daily, definite sentences instead of indeterminate sentences in the jail, adequate medical attention and "dismissal of all guards that we can prove to be sadists and—or head beaters."

Gov. Anderson replied by letter that the demands would be "carefully considered" but that nothing will be done until the guards are freed unharmed.

Byrd To Command South Pole Trip

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd will make his fifth visit to the antarctic later this year as head of a U. S. scientific expedition.

The expedition, announced late yesterday by the White House, will set out in November and continue into 1957. Byrd will be 67 when the expedition begins.

The Navy is organizing the trip to set up scientific observation sites for use in the International Geophysical Year, 1957-58. During that period, scientists from many countries will conduct simultaneous studies in earth sciences.

This May Help You Save Some Money On Income Taxes

Most people will find income tax filing time this year a little easier on their pocketbooks—and their nerves. For one thing, the new laws reflect reduction of about 10 per cent in tax rates that went into effect Jan. 1, 1954.

But just as important are the many changes aimed at helping people who particularly need relief—that were put into effect when Congress last August overhauled the tax code, its first freshening up in more than 50 years.

Congress at that time set April 15 instead of March 15 as the deadline for making final payments. But it is already later than you think. Don't put off the task until you have to do it under last-minute pressure.

Meanwhile, in a series of small illustrated features, The Herald will touch upon some of the major changes that may help save you money.

For the first of these "Tax Savers", see page two in today's issue.

Panamanian Congress Declares Ex-President Guilty In Assassination

Wallace's Plan To Aid Baldies Has Backfire

'Co-Sponsors' Say It Brought Howl From Barbers

Glaring publicity, reflected off bald heads in the dignified General Assembly, brought an apology in Columbus last night from Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative.

Wallace said he offered a pro-rated hair-cutting proposal in the spirit of fun without consulting eight other members whose names also appeared as sponsors. It was evident today that not all of the eight thought it was funny.

The proposal, advocated at least twice in recent months by The Herald before it was mentioned in the legislature, pointed out that the full rate for haircuts is unfair when there is little hair to cut. When the objection was outlined some time ago by The Herald, a spokesman for barbers complained that "more research" is needed when trimming a bald-headed man—figuratively.

The barber spokesman also declared that such cases require special effort, since a thin fringe permits only a narrow margin for scissors errors. "With a full head of hair," he explained, "we can hide our mistakes easier."

NEVERTHELESS, the move to place the whole matter before the state legislature did not meet with unanimous humor.

Wallace disclosed that some of the "co-sponsors" got in bad with their hometown barbers.

The Pickaway County representative took the floor after Rep. Griffith Evans, Portage County Republican, reported that barbers in Kent called him from the dinner table last weekend to protest the resolution. Wallace is a Democrat.

The flash also was seen in San Francisco and Salt Lake City. Observers on Angel's Peak, 55 miles from the blast, said the fireball lasted about 20 seconds and five minutes after the flash there was a fairly mild rumble of the pressure wave. The power of the blast was felt in Las Vegas approximately 7 minutes after the flash and one observer classed it as a "middle-sized" shock.

Ohio Assembly Passes Some Minor Bills

COLUMBUS (AP)—Last night, as Ohio's 169 legislators returned for their 13th work week, these were the major developments:

The Senate passed without dissent a House-approved bill to extend for two more years an assessment against intrastate utilities to pay for administration of the state utility laws. The assessment produces about $600,000 in the two-year period.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to allow the state highway department to hire outside engineers to lay out and supervise highway projects. Two years ago, the Legislature authorized employment of outside engineers to draw plans for such projects.

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill to allow school boards to hire retired teachers as regular teachers—an effort to recruit several hundred teachers badly needed by Ohio schools.

The Senate completed legislative action on a bill requiring telephone party-line subscribers to yield use of their lines in emergencies. The Senate agreed to minor House amendments.

Israel Resigned To Condemnation

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Israeli diplomatic sources acknowledged today that their government faced certain condemnation by the U. N. Security Council for the Gaza battle.

Such censure was proposed late yesterday by the United States, Britain and France. The 11-nation council was called to meet this afternoon to resume debate on the Feb. 28 clash in which 38 Egyptians, eight Israelis died.

While Israel's delegation withheld formal comment on the Western resolution, one Israeli source said the proposal appeared certain to win almost solid approval from the council. There was some speculation the resolution might be adopted by nightfall.

Ike Doubts Reds Ready For Attack

April 15 Strike In Formosa Area Not Expected, White House Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower does not believe Red China is prepared to cause any major conflict in the Formosa Strait in the weeks just ahead.

The President does not share the view that a Red Chinese attack might be made on the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu by April 15. He has rejected this estimate of the situation by some military sources.

Information reaching the White House indicates Red China lacks air bases and supplies to back up an amphibious assault on the islands, just off the mainland.

These views were outlined by an authoritative administration source in a discussion of key current issues in the foreign relations field.

As for the possibility of a Big Four conference, the source said the administration sees all signs as pointing to a meeting of some type. The question is when, where and what form it will take.

ON THE QUESTION of war or peace in the Formosa Strait, the source said the administration was disturbed by the weekend report that the Communists would be capable of an early attack on Quemoy and Matsu.

The report, the source said, gave an erroneous and possibly alarming picture which might lead some to believe the United States would soon be in a full-scale shooting war with atomic weapons.

Also, he said, it was felt that such talk could damage the American position with some foreign nations that take issue with parts of U. S. policy in the Formosa area.

The source said Eisenhower does not minimize the danger in the Far East. He was said to feel that the situation is likely to become increasingly serious and that nobody can predict what Red China might do.

A decision whether the United States would go to the defense of the offshore islands rests with Eisenhower. The decision probably would come before any actual attack but it hasn't been made yet, the source said.

On this point, Sen. George (D-Ga.) said today he thinks the American people will support "whatever decision President Eisenhower is compelled to make" between war and peace in the Pacific.

But Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he feels Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles are joining Senate Republican leaders in turning the GOP into a "war party."

SPARKMAN SAID in his view the United States now stands "on the verge of war" in the Far East.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, and Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire, who heads the Senate GOP Policy Committee, have said they regard the offshore islands as essential to Formosa's defense and have advocated fighting to hold them.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) in a Senate speech yesterday called for Eisenhower to "declare before another day has passed what America will do in the event Quemoy and Matsu are attacked." He said the administration had made "a strategic blunder of the first magnitude" in not announcing its intentions.

Ammer Family Plans To Sell Store Here

A spokesman for the family of the late Moses Ammer, well known downtown merchant who died here last week, said today that plans are being made to sell the Ammer store, located on S. Court St. near Main.

Sale of the store, which has been closed since last Wednesday, will be arranged for the near future. The confectionery and grocery establishment reopened today for business.

William Ammer, Pickaway County prosecutor and one of three surviving sons, has been named administrator of his father's estate.

Meanwhile, under authority of probate court, business will be continued at the store.

Moses Ammer, it was disclosed, signed a five-year lease for the premises shortly before he became seriously ill several weeks ago.

Guizado Given Term In Prison As Sentence

National Assembly Votes 45-8 Against Successor To Slain Jose Remon

PANAMA (AP)—Panama's Congress, the National Assembly, today convicted impeached President Jose Ramon Guizado as an accessory in the assassination of his predecessor, President Jose Antonio Remon. It sentenced him to six years and eight months in prison.

In addition, the Assembly formally stripped Guizado of his rank as President and banned him from public office. The verdict was reached at a secret session of 14½ hours at the Palace of Justice.

Sources in close touch with the National Assembly said the 33 deputies reached their verdict before dawn by a 45-8 vote.

A two-thirds vote of the Assembly membership was required for both conviction and sentence.

Acquittal for Guizado, a wealthy 56-year-old civil engineer who was educated in Tennessee at Vanderbilt University, would have meant that he could have reclaimed the presidency. Ricardo Arias Espinosa, second vice president under Remon, replaced him Jan. 15.

THE PROSECUTION during the trial charged that Guizado plotted the assassination with Ruben Miro, a socially prominent lawyer, to grab power and make millions. The prosecutor demanded a maximum sentence of 35 years imprisonment—20 years as a principal in the crime and 15 more years under a penal code provision covering acts against the safety of a president.

Previously officials had indicated the prosecution would seek a 10-year sentence, the maximum for an accomplice in a homicide.

The defense argued that Guizado was being tried for political reasons because a clique wished to remove him from office. It argued that Miro alone had plotted the killing.

Miro first confessed the slaying and implicated Guizado. The impeached president pleaded innocent and Miro later repudiated his confession.

The Assembly began its deliberations about 7 p. m. last night, several hours after defense attorney Felipe Juan Escobar delivered the last argument in the eight-day trial.

In his confession, Miro said Guizado had promised him a cabinet post.

Miro and others named as his accomplices are scheduled to be tried by the regular criminal courts, probably in April.

'BIRDS EYE VIEW OF GOPHER TENEMENT'

Since a certain author named M. Goose neglected to write any stories for children about gophers, I will. Once upon a time there was a gopher named Elwood who lived in a small hole in back of a green tree near a ripply field of tall corn that was plowed by two horses who were owned by a nice farmer who raised the tall corn to feed to the two horses so they could plow the ripply field which was near a green tree that grew right in front of a small hole in which lived a gopher named Elwood who swiped 24.7 percent of the corn annually. MORAL: This farmer should learn something about crop rotation, and gopher extermination.

Rumors Hint Malenkov Gets Usual Red Ax

Ex-Premier Is Absent From Ceremony For Visiting Swedish Group

LONDON (AP)—Rising speculation about the whereabouts of deposed Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov was heightened today by his absence from a farewell ceremony for a visiting Swedish power delegation.

The Swedes last night ended a 17-day tour of Soviet power stations, made at the invitation of the Soviet government. For unexplained reasons they did not see Malenkov, who was demoted seven weeks ago from the premiership to the post of minister of power stations.

A Moscow radio broadcast describing the departure of the Swedish delegation made no mention of Malenkov. Alexi Pavlenko, described as a deputy power station minister, saw them off at Moscow Airport. Until Malenkov got the job last Feb. 9, Pavlenko had been the minister.

Malenkov also was missing from the government box at the final session Saturday of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, the Parliament of the largest of the 16 Soviet republics. He had attended the previous sessions, which began Wednesday.

There was no official explanation for his absence.

RUMORS THAT Malenkov had disappeared or been executed swept London. A British Foreign Office spokesman, asked about these stories today, said "I could hardly not have heard them." But he declined to assess them.

Some Western officials have speculated that Malenkov, who stepped down as premier Feb. 8 with a confession of failure to do his job, was doomed to eventual liquidation. These officials, seeing him as a loser in the Kremlin struggle for power, believed it only a question of time.

Moscow radio last night reported what could be construed as an attack on the ex-premier by Moscow social science teachers.

Meeting under the auspices of the Moscow Town Committee of the Communist party, the broadcast said, the teachers "sharply condemned the anti-Marxist reasoning of certain economists who rejected the law of the primary development of heavy industry under socialism."

As premier, Malenkov undertook to ease the lot of the Soviet people by putting more emphasis on the production of consumer goods and less on heavy industry. With his downfall, this policy was reversed. The Chicago Tribune Press Service reported yesterday that rumors were circulating in London that Malenkov was executed last Thursday. The dispatch said the reports had been received "through diplomatic channels" from New Delhi.

Supreme Court Says States Hold Broad Police Powers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court says the states have broad powers to regulate business and industrial conditions when their legislatures find that public evils need correction.

In upholding, 8-0, yesterday an Oklahoma law regulating the selling and fitting of eyeglasses, Justice Douglas said for the court the law "need not be in every respect logically consistent with its aims to be constitutional."

He added: "It is enough that there is an evil at hand for correction, and that it might be thought that the particular legislative measure was a rational way to correct it."

"The day is gone when this court uses the due process clause of the Constitution's 14th amendment to strike down state laws, regulatory of business and industrial conditions, because they may be unwise, improvident or out of harmony with a particular school of thought."

THE CLAUSE he referred to declares that no one may be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. The decision was announced shortly after the court was restored to its full nine-man strength with the swearing in of John Marshall Harlan as an associate justice. Harlan did not participate in any of the court's rulings yesterday.

In other actions the court: 1. Declined a union may not sue an employer in federal court for wages claimed on behalf of its members. Voting, 6-2, the court said the members could sue individually in state courts.

The decision applied to a suit by the Assn. of Westinghouse Salaried Employees against Westinghouse Electric Corp. plants in East Pittsburgh and Homewood, Pa.

2. Voted, 8-0, to set aside an injunction issued by the Missouri Supreme Court against peaceful picketing of the St. Louis brewery of the illegal use of narcotics and may teach the harmful effects of the use of alcoholic beverages."

That's the form in which the bill reaches its Senate vote today.

There may be an attempt to amend the bill again to restore the "shall" to apply to "the harmful effects of the use of alcoholic beverages." The amendment appears to have a good chance of approval.

On another Senate change there appears to be little chance of a fight. That is a committee amendment to require that school children must have one full year of instruction in American history before they graduate from the eighth grade.

The fraternity-sorority bill was the subject of several hot committee hearings during which the bobby-sox brigade descended on the statehouse to protest stringent regulation of membership in what they call "clubs." But while congratulating the youngsters in the effective way they presented their case, committee members voted unanimously to send the bill to the House floor with a recommendation for passage.

The ban on high school secret societies has been on the state law book for many years, but its enforcement has been difficult because it lacked penalty.

Assortment Of Odd Laws Being Cooked Up By Solons

By The Associated Press
Every day someone somewhere vows "there oughta be a law" for or against something close to his heart.

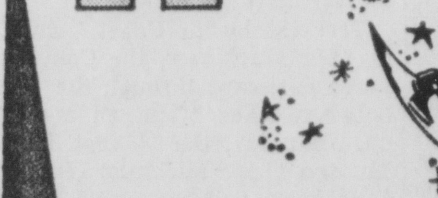

As a result state legislatures are confronted with proposals embracing a strange assortment of persons, places and things. These range from beer cans, bear traps and seagulls to wild horses. For instance:

Nebraska has pending a bill providing a 1-cent bounty on empty beer cans returned to the county clerk. Its sponsors say it would help keep empty cans off the roads.

Residents of Maine planning to set out bear traps may have to surround them with two strands of barbed wire bearing signs "Bear Trap" and "Trappe d'Ours." Reason is that the traps are supposed to snare bears, not French-Canadian woodsmen working the forests.

Inland Utah has a bill to make the seagull the state bird. In Nevada anyone wanting to hunt wild horses can't do so with dependents now more dependable

If you're a parent you no longer have to keep a close financial eye on your youngster's earnings for fear you'll lose an exemption.

Under the new law, if he is under 19, or in school, or getting on-the-farm training from an accredited school, he is a dependent—regardless of his earnings—if you are providing at least half of his support.

He may, however, have to pay an income tax of his own on what he earns.

If you, together with others, support a parent or other dependent, you can choose one of you to take the exemption. Formerly, an exemption could not be claimed in such a case, unless more than half the support was supplied by one person.

Further, if a person lives in your home and receives more than half of his support from you, he now qualifies as a dependent for taxes regardless of personal relationship.

Mock A-Attack Slated June 15

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many of the nation's chief industrial and population centers will come under mock atomic attack in mid-June.

The purpose is to test their readiness to meet an assault of "near-saturation" proportions. Simulated A-bombs and hydrogen missiles will rain on 56 cities, including New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. The over-all test period will last for 26 hours, starting at 11 a. m., EST, June 15.

Plans for the big trial of civil defense preparedness, evacuation and survival techniques were announced yesterday by the Civil Defense Administration and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

The agencies listed 43 continental cities as definite targets, mostly in the industrial Northeast, Midwest and Pacific Coast areas. Six others are in Alaska, the Panama Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

IN ADDITION, seven American cities will be attacked without more than a bare advance warning. CDA and ODM drew up a roster of 49 cities to serve as possible surprise targets.

Assortment Of Odd Laws Being Cooked Up By Solons

By The Associated Press
Every day someone somewhere vows "there oughta be a law" for or against something close to his heart.

As a result state legislatures are confronted with proposals embracing a strange assortment of persons, places and things. These range from beer cans, bear traps and seagulls to wild horses. For instance:

Nebraska has pending a bill providing a 1-cent bounty on empty beer cans returned to the county clerk. Its sponsors say it would help keep empty cans off the roads.

Residents of Maine planning to set out bear traps may have to surround them with two strands of barbed wire bearing signs "Bear Trap" and "Trappe d'Ours." Reason is that the traps are supposed to snare bears, not French-Canadian woodsmen working the forests.

Inland Utah has a bill to make the seagull the state bird. In Nevada anyone wanting to hunt wild horses can't do so with Colorado has one setting up special license plates for 25-year-old automobiles. The antique cars could be used only in parades.

Rep. T. W. (Buckshot) Lane, a former county sheriff, wants Texas to tax telephone poles 50 cents apiece.

And in Rhode Island small type would be banned from insurance policies.

If Criticism Could Kill, Skunk A Gonner Long Ago

WASHINGTON (AP)—Comedian Fred Allen is quoted as saying that "if criticism could kill, the skunk would have been dead long ago."

In the nation's capital, the President always is a prime target. Former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman were the butt of many a bitter jibe—and still are. Former President Hoover was one of the most maligned chief executives in the nation's history. And even "Silent Cal" Coolidge was battered.

President Dwight Eisenhower had remained remarkably free of personal attack—until yesterday. Then his turn came.

And today his defenders rushed into the fray.

Sen. Allott (R-Colo.) said today

Eisenhower is doing a lot more for the country by regular church attendance than Sen. Neely (D-W. Va.) is doing in criticizing him for it.

Allott blasted back at Neely's criticisms yesterday of the President's golf, his church attendance and his foreign and domestic programs.

Neely, in a speech to the CIO United Auto Workers convention at Cleveland, said the President never belonged to a church before he became chief executive yet now gets his picture taken nearly every Sunday attending services.

"I object to connecting religion with politics," Neely said. "Any man who tries to parade his religion that way before the public is ungodly."

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he doesn't think "anybody in the United States believes" what Neely said.

Neely said he thinks the country needs a President "who won't spend more than half of his time playing golf and fishing." He said he believed "Ike should not keep his eye so much on the golf bag so that the country won't end up behind the eight ball."

Allott said he seemed to remember that Democratic Presidents went cruising up and down the Potomac "and spent some time sitting on the beach in Florida wearing fancy flowered shirts."

Now that Neely has broken the ice, more chapters in the needle-the-President story are inevitable.

'Pressures' Hit By FCC Chairman

COLUMBUS (AP)—George C. McConaughy, newly confirmed chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, says he believes regulating agencies for public utilities must be free from outside pressures—public or private.

McConaughy, former Columbus attorney, addressed the opening session of the three-day convention of the Ohio Independent Telephone Assn. yesterday.

He said regulatory groups have three concepts to consider: (1) protection of the public; (2) insuring a fair return to a firm's investors; and (3) insuring that regulated firms have enough money to operate efficiently.

U.S. Urged Give Germany Quick Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said today the Eisenhower administration should "supply all the materials possible" to assist a rapid buildup of a 12-division West German army.

He commented as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepared to hear a plea from Secretary of State Dulles for an OK of treaties to rearm Germany and bring her into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Sen. George (D-Ga.), committee chairman, forecast that the pact might be ready for anticipated Senate approval late this week.

There are about 54 million motor vehicles in the United States.

Power Company's Expenditures To Exceed $10 Million In County

Improvements and expansion by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. in Pickaway County may total more than $1 million during 1955.

In addition to this, installation of a new 100,000 kilowatt generator and supporting equipment at the Picway power plant will add more than $9 million to that figure, according to an announcement by the firm.

Heading the list of expansions for the county is a proposed $142,000 addition to the Harrison switching station. Another $48,000 is listed for the completion of the Scioto Trail station with an additional $12,000 earmarked for completion of the Circleville station.

The new generator for the Picway power plant, on the northern edge of the county, will nearly double the present power output. The money spent for this will be a major portion of the 1955 budget the firm has set up for generating plants.

THE PICWAY power plant will also get an additional $75,000 for a well and water pipeline, coal yards and coal crushing equipment, plus other general improvements.

In all, the firm will spend approximately $22 million. This sum will swell the firm's expenditures to $145 million since the end of World War II.

The firm reports that generating capacity has increased 175 per cent in the past nine years. The firm now services more than 245,000 customers in 22 central and southern Ohio counties.

Other improvements planned include the following:
Athens County—$275,000 for construction at the E. M. Poston Plant $19,300 for an addition to the Clark substation.

Franklin County—$856,500 for substations in the Columbus area plus a $57,000 substation in Whitehall.

Delaware County—$219,000 for a new Delaware station.
Gallia County—$40,000 for a new substation in Gallipolis plus an additional $11,000 for the Addison station.

Jackson County—$123,000 for the completion of the Lick substation near Jackson, making total construction there reach $621,000, and an addition to the Jackson substation will require another $47,000.

Other improvements and a new switching station, estimated at $192,000, will add nearly $300,000 to the total.

Rumors Hint Malenkov Gets Usual Red Ax

Ex-Premier Is Absent From Ceremony For Visiting Swedish Group

LONDON (U)—Rising speculation about the whereabouts of deposed Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov was heightened today by his absence from a farewell ceremony for a visiting Swedish power delegation.

The Swedes last night ended a 17-day tour of Soviet power stations, made at the invitation of the Soviet government. For unexplained reasons they did not see Malenkov, who was demoted seven weeks ago from the premiership to the post of minister of power stations.

A Moscow radio broadcast describing the departure of the Swedish delegation made no mention of Malenkov. Alexi Pavlenko, described as a deputy power stations minister, saw them off at Moscow Airport. Until Malenkov got the job last Feb. 9, Pavlenko had been the minister.

Malenkov also was missing from the government box at the final session Saturday of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, the Parliament of the largest of the 16 Soviet republics. He had attended the previous sessions, which began Wednesday.

There was no official explanation for his absence.

RUMORS THAT Malenkov has disappeared or been executed swept London. A British Foreign Office spokesman, asked about these stories today, said "I could hardly not have heard them." But he declined to assess them.

Some Western officials have speculated that Malenkov, who stepped down as premier Feb. 8 with a confession of failure to do his job, was doomed to eventual liquidation. These officials, seeing him as a loser in the Kremlin struggle for power, believed it only a question of time.

Moscow radio last night reported what could be construed as an attack on the ex-premier by Moscow social science teachers.

Meeting under the auspices of the Moscow Town Committee of the Communist party, the broadcast said, the teachers "sharply condemned the anti-Marxist reasoning of certain economists who rejected the law of the primary development of heavy industry under socialism."

As premier, Malenkov undertook to ease the lot of the Soviet people by putting more emphasis on the production of consumer goods and less on heavy industry. With his downfall, this policy was reversed. The Chicago Tribune Press Service reported yesterday that rumors were circulating in London that Malenkov was executed last Thursday. The dispatch said the reports had been received "through diplomatic channels" from New Delhi.

Supreme Court Says States Hold Broad Police Powers

WASHINGTON (U)—The Supreme Court says the states have broad powers to regulate business and industrial conditions when their legislatures find that public evils need correction.

In upholding, 8-0, yesterday an Oklahoma law regulating the selling and fitting of eyeglasses, Justice Douglas said for the court the law "need not be in every respect logically consistent with its aims to be constitutional."

He added: "It is enough that there is an evil at hand for correction, and that it might be thought that the particular legislative measure was a rational way to correct it."
"The day is gone when this court uses the due process clause of the Constitution's 14th amendment to strike down state laws, regulatory of business and industrial conditions, because they may be unwise, imprudent or out of harmony with a particular school of thought."

THE CLAUSE he referred to declares that no one may be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.
The decision was announced shortly after the court was restored to its full nine-man strength with the swearing in of John Marshall Harlan as an associate justice. Harlan did not participate in any of the court's rulings yesterday.

In other actions the court:
1. Decided a union may not sue an employer in federal court for wages claimed on behalf of its members. Voting, 6-2, the court said the members could sue individually in state courts.

The decision applied to a suit by the Assn. of Westinghouse Salaried Employees against Westinghouse Electric Corp. plants in East Pittsburgh and Homewood, Pa.

2. Voted, 8-0, to set aside an injunction issued by the Missouri Supreme Court against peaceful picketing of the St. Louis brewery of the illegal use of narcotics and may teach the harmful effects of the use of alcoholic beverages."

That's the form in which the bill reaches its Senate vote today.

There may be an attempt to amend the bill again to restore the "shall" to apply to "the harmful effects of the use of alcoholic beverages." The amendment appears to have a good chance of approval.

On another Senate change there appears to be little chance of a fight. That is a committee amendment to require that school children must have one full year's instruction in American history before they graduate from the eighth grade.

The fraternity-sorority bill was the subject of several hot committee hearings during which the bobby-sox brigade descended on the statehouse to protest stringent regulation of membership in what they call "clubs." But while congratulating the youngsters in the effective way they presented their case, committee members voted unanimously to send the bill to the House floor with a recommendation for passage.

The ban on high school secret societies has been on the state law book for many years, but its enforcement has been difficult because it lacked penalty.

Jehovah Witnesses Planning Campaign

L. Suttle, local presiding minister of Jehovah's Witnesses has announced a special campaign including a public lecture entitled "Christianity—Which One is the Light of the World?"

All 14,000 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses in 159 countries will participate. Suttle will deliver this discourse, to which the public is invited, at Kingdom Hall, 158 W. Main St., at 7 p. m. April 3.

After the discourse a new 32-page booklet containing extraordinary information will be given free to each person in attendance. Suttle said the contents of this specially prepared booklet have not yet been made public, but that its message is unique and will be of special interest to persons of all faiths.

Lutheran Services

Mid-Week Lenten services will be at Trinity Lutheran Church here Wednesday evening, starting at 7:30. A highlight of the program will be selections sung by the Pickaway Township High School Chorus.

Under the new law, if he is under 19, or in school, or getting on-the-farm training from an accredited school, he is a dependent—regardless of his earnings—if you are providing at least half of his support.

He may, however, have to pay an income tax of his own on what he earns.

If you, together with others, support a parent or other dependent, you can choose one of you to take the exemption. Formerly, an exemption could not be claimed in such a case, unless more than half the support was supplied by one person.

Further, if a person lives in your home and receives more than half of his support from you, he now qualifies as a dependent for taxes regardless of personal relationship.

Mock A-Attack Slated June 15

WASHINGTON (U)—Many of the nation's chief industrial and population centers will come under mock atomic attack in mid-June.

The purpose is to test their readiness to meet an assault of "near-saturation" proportions.

Simulated A-bombs and hydrogen missiles will rain on 56 cities, including New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. The over-all test period will last for 26 hours, starting at 11 a. m., EST, June 15.

Plans for the big trial of civil defense preparedness, evacuation and survival techniques were announced yesterday by the Civil Defense Administration and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

The agencies listed 43 continental cities as definite targets, mostly in the industrial Northeast, Midwest and Pacific Coast areas. Six others are in Alaska, the Panama Canal Zone, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

IN ADDITION, seven American cities will be attacked without more than a bare advance warning. CDA and ODM drew up a roster of 49 cities to serve as possible surprise targets.

WASHINGTON (U)—Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) said today the Eisenhower administration should "supply all the materials possible" to assist a rapid buildup of a 12-dvision West German army.

He commented as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepared to hear a plea from Secretary of State Dulles for an OK of treaties to rearm Germany and bring her into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Sen. George (D-Ga), committee chairman, forecast that the pact might be ready for anticipated Senate approval late this week.

There are about 54 million motor vehicles in the United States.

Power Company's Expenditures To Exceed $10 Million In County

Improvements and expansion by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. in Pickaway County may total more than $1 million during 1935.

In addition to this, installation of a new 100,000 kilowatt generator and supporting equipment at the Picway power plant will add more than $9 million to that figure, according to an announcement by the firm.

Heading the list of expansions for the county is a proposed $142,000 addition to the Harrison switching station. Another $48,000 is listed for the completion of the Scioto Trail station with an additional $12,000 earmarked for completion of the Circleville station.

The new generator for the Picway power plant, on the northern edge of the county, will nearly double the present power output. The money spent for this will be a major portion of the 1935 budget the firm has set up for generating plants.

THE PICWAY power plant will also get an additional $575,000 for a well and water pipeline, coal yards and coal crushing equipment, plus other general improvements.

In all, the firm will spend approximately $22 million. This sum will swell the firm's expenditures to $145 million since the end of World War II.

The firm reports that generating capacity has increased 175 per cent in the past nine years. The firm now services more than 245,000 customers in 22 central and southern Ohio counties.

Other improvements planned include the following:
Athens County—$275,000 for construction at the E. M. Poston Plant $139,300 for an addition to the Clark substation.

Franklin County—$856,500 for substations in the Columbus area plus a $57,000 substation in Whitehall.

Delaware County—$219,000 for a new Delaware station.

Gallia County—$40,000 for a new substation in Gallipolis plus an additional $11,000 for the Addition station.

Jackson County—$123,000 for the completion of the Lick substation near Jackson, making total construction there reach $621,000, and an addition to the Jackson substation will require another $47,000.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Campbell, handpicked by President Eisenhower as comptroller general, started with a bang. He put a firecracker under the administration's highway program.

If this surprised the administration, it must have doubly surprised Campbell's critics in Congress. They had suspected out loud he'd be an administration yes-man.

Campbell, a 55-year-old New Yorker and an accountant all his life, was treasurer and vice president of Columbia University, where Eisenhower was president. He must have made an impression on Eisenhower.

In 1953 Eisenhower made him a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. Campbell got into the row of his life when he voted for the administration-backed Dixon-Yates contract. Under it private power companies would build a 107-million-dollar power plant to supply the Tennessee Valley Authority with power to replace power which the TVA sent into atomic plants.

TVA's friends in Congress and elsewhere practically screamed in protest. They said they saw this as an opening move to undercut TVA. Tennessee's two Democratic senators, Gore and Kefauver, didn't forget Campbell's role in Dixon-Yates.

Last December Eisenhower appointed Campbell comptroller general.

The comptroller general is head of the government's General Accounting Office, which Congress created in 1921 as a watchdog. The comptroller general has to watch how the government spends money and keep Congress informed about it.

Campbell's appointment ran into trouble in the Senate right away, particularly from Gore.

Gore said he had nothing against Campbell personally but an accountant was not the man for the

'Commercialism' Tied To CD Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An official of the Federal Civil Defense Administration says that charges of "commercialism" have brought a revision in plans for a canned milk company to issue, civil defense identification tags on a tie-in with its milk labels.

Harold L. Aitken, executive assistant FCDA administrator, said yesterday that the company (Pet Milk) had agreed to issue the tags on payment of 25 cents alone. The tags will carry an FCDA inscription and bear no reference to the milk firm.

"The company has agreed that if it makes any profit on the tags, the money will be turned over to states and local communities for civil defense purposes," Aitken said.

Latin Musicians Hit Union Trouble

CLEVELAND (AP) — Duma's Alma Indian marimba troupe from Guatemala was right in the middle today of a dispute between the AFL Musicians Union and Herman Pichner, owner of the Alpine Village, theater restaurant.

The union has advised Pichner that union rules do not permit members to perform with nonmembers and has threatened to order its members at Alpine Village to pull out. The Guatemalans are ineligible for union membership until they have been U. S. residents for six months.

job; it should go to a lawyer or former member of Congress.

And besides, Gore expressed fear Campbell might, as comptroller general, go along with the administration instead of being critical when it needed criticism. But the Senate finally approved Campbell March 18.

Yesterday he was called before the Senate's Public Roads subcommittee, of which Gore is chairman. Gore wasn't there. Gore, severest critic of the administration's 101-billion-dollar highway program—which seems doomed anyway—has offered a program of his own, an eight-billion-dollar one.

Campbell was asked what he thought of the administration's program. He blasted it.

Argentine Paper Airs Tiff Between Peron, Catholics

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The newspaper Democracia said yesterday ranking prelates of the Roman Catholic Church were "the worst and most insidious enemies" of President Juan D. Peron's program for the working classes.

Democracia published a front page editorial about the church under the heading "Crocodile Tears." This was offered as an answer to a pastoral letter, read in all Argentine Catholic churches yesterday, defending the position of the church in a dispute with the Peron government which has raged since last November.

The newspaper ranks as a semi-official government organ and its editorial is considered an authoritative statement of the Peron administration's views. Democracia denied, point by point, every statement made in the pastoral letter.

The clergy were the bitterest foes of Peron's social program, the paper declared, adding: "These cardinals, archbishops and bishops who today shamefully claim virtues to which they are not entitled were hidden accomplices in this exploitation (of workers) because, instead of arising like Christ in defense of the humble, they preached a shameful and cowardly resignation to the workers."

When Eva Peron, the President's late wife, created her nationwide charity organization, the Eva Peron Foundation, "nobody fought it with more fury, although with more inefficiency, than this shameful and worn-out oligarchy," Democracia said. It declared that, to combat Peron's current program for student organizations, the Catholic prelates even embraced Communists.

The church complained in yesterday's pastoral letter that the government prohibited its usual religious processions and outdoor meetings.

Democracia said the church actually was organizing political meetings under the pretext of staging religious processions and thus was violating a law limiting public gatherings.

The pastoral letter complained that non-Catholic denominations had been authorized to work in Argentina and Democracia replied that freedom for all religions is guaranteed in this nation "without narrow sectarianism."

The church letter protested that Catholic programs are barred from Argentine radio stations. Democracia said this was false. In fact, it said, the Catholics wanted free radio time and the stations, as commercial organizations, expected to be paid for the programs.

To a charge that priests had been fired from teaching jobs, Democracia answered that the appointment of priests as professors of religious education was expressly prohibited by the government, but the church had violated the ban by deceit.

The editorial also noted a charge in the pastoral letter that Argentine Catholic schools, numbering almost 1,000, were threatened by withdrawal of the government's $7 million peso — $6,300,000 — annual subsidy.

Democracia said the church claims the right to teach and add:

"No one opposes this. What the pastoral letter did not say — and what it should have said — is that whoever wants to have the pleasure of teaching should also pay the costs and not charge them against a national budget already burdened by frauds denounced earlier."

This was a reference to an Education Ministry resolution March 23 listing 90 private Catholic schools charged with defrauding the government by collecting salaries for nonexistent teachers. Church spokesmen have denied this charge.

VA Information For Veterans

Q—I understand I have 120 days from discharge to obtain Korean GI term insurance. During that period, I am covered by the free indemnity I had while in service. If I apply early, will I lose out on my 120-day free coverage?

A—You will not lose out on your 120-day free coverage if you apply for GI term insurance before the time runs out. At your request, VA will apply your initial payment to the first premium due after the 120-day period expires.

Q—I am attending a three-year trade school course under the Korean GI Bill. I am allowed up to 30 days absences a year. If I'm not absent at all the first year, can I carry over the 30 days to my second year?

A—No. Unused absences may not be carried over from one year to the next.

Q—I entered the armed forces after January 31, 1955, the end of the period for building up wartime benefits. Will I, as a peacetime veteran, be entitled to GI insurance, even though I didn't serve during the wartime benefits period?

A—You may be entitled to GI insurance after separation from service. This benefit was not affected by the proclamation establishing January 31 as the cut-off for wartime benefits.

Q—I am a disabled World War II veteran. I could have entered Public Law 16 training earlier than this, but I never got around to it. If I apply now, would I be able to get four years of training?

A—No. Under the law, you would be permitted to take a course that you could complete by July 25, 1956, the end of the Public Law 16 program as the law now stands.

DECLINE OF A MANIA
A MAGAZINE for collectors reports that prices of antiques are declining from their peak and that the downturn is especially noticeable in prices for junk that passed as antiques several months ago.
The craze to obtain possession of any article, no matter how worthless, if it was old became a mania during recent years of easy money. For years there was a steadily increasing demand for genuine antiques in furniture, dishes, etc., but cracked, damaged and defective articles found few takers and at low prices.
It was in this category that demand rose by leaps and bounds in recent years. Antique shops, their shelves denuded, stocked up their rooms with glued and patched junk and went to town. Trash brought higher prices than did genuine antiques a few years previously.
But now the trend has been reversed. Genuine antiques are in great demand, and at the highest prices ever paid, but they are scarce. People who have them seem to be holding on to them. But people no longer want junk and the market has become glutted with it.
Perhaps there is an indication in this of the future trend of America's economy. Perhaps the time is not long distant when people will refuse to pay inflated prices for inferior merchandise. This wasn't a country of junk in the past, and it may again become a nation addicted to true values.

VACCINE FOR MILLIONS
NATIONWIDE distribution of enough Salk anti-polio vaccine to vaccinate nine million children is now well under way. This comes in anticipation of a favorable report from the scientific evaluation center established to measure results of the 400,000 children inoculated last spring. This report is expected to be made public about April 1, and is awaited with great interest by the scientific world. While the report is expected to be favorable, elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent leaks, which is understandable.
The vaccine now available was purchased through contributions by a recent March of Dimes. In addition to this supply pharmaceutical manufacturers are piling up stocks available to private physicians. Scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning are positive that the report will not be entirely favorable.
If Salk vaccine proves to be the answer to polio it would be the occasion of worldwide rejoicing. Elimination of polio would be the greatest forward step in medical science in this generation. The dimes given in the past are playing a big part in the fight against a dread disease, and a battle which may be on the verge of winning.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Whenever any Administration in Washington takes a position on any subject, there is always a claqué of distinguished names that is used for supporting applause. The same names often appeared in the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations as now appear in the Eisenhower Administration. For many of these men, it is always "God's in his heaven: All's right with the world."
Unfortunately for their reputations, all has not gone well, certainly with the universal desire for a restored and permanent peace. The war, which commenced in 1914, has managed in one form or another to continue to this day. The pessimists who questioned the virtue of secret diplomacy and deals without principle have been justified by the course of events.
And so, one comes across comments concerning the Yalta Agreements which are not borne out by the publication of the Yalta Documents. For instance, Harry Truman, then Vice President of the United States, said of them:
"We're going to look forward to the most glorious period in the history of the world." Surely, the period between 1945 and 1955 has not been the most glorious in the history of the world from the standpoint of achievement of any kind.
James Byrnes, who was present at Yalta, said:
"Every person should be proud of the role played by the President, especially in the discussion of economic and political problems . . . I was tremendously impressed by the comradeship and genuine affection showed by the three leaders."
Elliott Roosevelt, in his book, "As He Saw It," gives us this:
"Harry Hopkins is my witness for the statement that the unity of Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt was a firmer and more tangible thing at Yalta than at Teheran. And it was evident that Father's role, even more than at earlier conferences, was that of leader. It is not by chance that he sat in the middle, when the pictures were taken. He dominated Winston Churchill more completely than before; Joseph Stalin was likewise prepared to heed Father's counsel, to accept Father's solutions."
The evidence in the documents shows that Stalin was a master of the situation and that the only one of the three who raised his voice in favor of the morality of Western civilization was Winston Churchill in his remarkable defense of free elections. Admiral William D. Leahy seems to have been one of the very few men in public life, particularly among those who were close to President Roosevelt, who suffered misgivings. He said:
". . . The proposed peace seemed to me a frightening sowing of dragon's teeth that carried germs of an appalling war revenge at some time in the distant future. There was another compelling factor that kept me from sharing in the feeling of great hope, almost exultation that prevailed in our American delegation as we left Yalta: as to the practicability of maintaining world peace through the United Nations. The essential agreement to destroy German militarism accepted at the conference would make Russia the dominant power in Europe."

SYNOPSIS
Jim Andrus had served a prison term for the vehicular slaying of eight-year-old Roger Pelham, whose lovely mother, Regina Pelham, Jim had been about to wed. Overindulgence during his bachelor dinner had blacked out Andrus' mind, and he had awakened next morning to find the lad dead in the driveway of the Pelham home in a suburb of New York. Unmistakably, Andrus' car had killed the boy, but Jim had no recollection of having driven his car that night! Back now, in his New York apartment, Andrus and his loyal Aunt Jude hope to clear the Andrus name.
CHAPTER THREE
ANDRUS shouldn't have talked to Jude when she came up to Sing Sing five months ago. He had said very little, but a little was all Jude needed. She not only read between the lines, she produced whole pages extemporaneously. He kept anger under blankets with an effort.
"The doctor, I'm afraid, will not have a fertile field. I haven't got any brains to speak of."
But Dr. Fernandez got the story behind the story out of him, what there was of it. Later on that night Fernandez talked to McKee, head of New York's homicide squad, over the telephone. "Interesting fellow, Andrus, been around—not a youngster. Jude Carmody's nephew." The medical examiner outlined the case in three sentences. "Andrus feels now that he didn't drive his car on the night before the wedding. He thinks someone else drove it, ran the child down and was afraid to come forward. What? No he has nothing concrete . . . Yes, the evidence against him is pretty strong. Know any good man up there who'd give it a thorough going over?"
McKee was noncommittal. The ambassador's widow was a lovely lady and Fernandez was susceptible; on the other hand, where men were concerned and work, he was shrewd and hard-headed. He had evidently taken a liking to the Andrus fellow . . . The most McKee would promise was that he would look it over.
On the following Wednesday, Andrus went up to his aunt's place in Hastings for Thanksgiving when Jude refused to take him. Susan Dwight was on the same train. Andrus had done a lot of intensive thinking about the silver flask in the intervening days. It was the one solid thing he had to hold on to. He hadn't found the flask or the slightest trace of it.
There was one place it might possibly be . . . Susan Dwight was three seats up from him. He looked at the back of her head for a long time. Then he walked along the aisle, and sat down in the vacant seat beside her. She didn't know who he was for a minute or two, thought he was just anyone, sat staring out at the drab landscape. Then she turned.
Regina was the taller of the two, with a slightly fuller figure. Shiny black hair fell softly over her forehead. At 34 her creamy skin was without a line and as smooth as satin. She had been born beautiful. Age wouldn't change her. Her blue eyes were unclouded, tranquil. She evidently hadn't heard that Jim Andrus was out of prison. Susan's tautness went. There was no danger of their meeting. Andrus would never have the audacity to come back to the Hill, and no one would speak of him to Regina. She was beginning to recover from the tragedy of Roger's death, at least physically, but she had a long way to go yet and needed a lot more time.
Regina talked cheerfully of this and that. Mrs. Casserly was there and was going to stay for a week; her own house was being painted and she was between jobs. She was going to cook the turkey. Frederick was thinking of going to Biloxi after Christmas for a rest; he'd been working hard. "Now, Susan, don't look like that."
"Like what?" Susan asked innocently.
Frederick was Regina's full brother, and Susan's stepbrother, and Susan had never got along well with him. Frederick was too sure of himself, too smug. His avowed aim in life was to have a million when he was 45. The antipathy between them was mutual, but Regina never gave up trying to pour oil on the water.
Regina had gone upstairs for something, and Lulu Casserly was picking up the tea tray to take it into the kitchen, when the front door opened and closed and Frederick's wife, Edith, came in with a rush.
Edith was small and dark, with a pretty, plump figure, a full red mouth and side dark eyes under black bangs. Heavy eyelids gave her a Mongolian look. Her coat was wet and she wore a scarf over her head. Rings glittered on her fingers when she pulled at her scarf.
"Susan, where's Regina?"
Susan said, "Upstairs."
Edith said, "Susan—that man is back here. Yes, Andrus." She nodded. "It's all over the Hill. Tony Crowell saw him on the train. He didn't get off at Ludwick, but Nellie Brownahan saw him coming out of the inn 10 minutes ago. Think of his coming here. Think of it! I don't know what Frederick will say when he hears."
Susan said, "Upstairs."
Cups slithered on the tray Mrs. Casserly was holding. One of the cups fell over on its side. The nurse's face was gray. Her blue eyes glittered on a point in space and her mouth was open. It was as though in the dusky freit room she had suddenly seen a ghost materialize.
Susan said coldly to Edith, "Don't talk so loud," looked past her into the empty hall, and then at the stairs.
Regina was there, on the broad landing, silhouetted against the window and the tree branches. She was standing still, one hand on the railing, the other at her side holding a pair of scissors. Regina had heard. She came slowly on down the stairs and into the room. She walked to her chair in the bay with the curved glass windows, seated herself, and put the scissors on the table. They made a small clink that was loud in the silence.
She picked up the Christmas decoration, a green felt stocking she had been working on, looked at it, and spoke. Her eyes were hidden, her voice was cool and soft, like snowflakes. "This is all nonsense, you know. I'm not made of glass. Yes, I heard Jim Andrus is out of jail. She shrugged. "They couldn't keep him there indefinitely. I want you all to understand this. I have nothing but pity for him. Absolutely nothing."
Susan said, "He spoke to me on the train coming up."

WASHINGTON — A drastic modification of the stiff-necked American policy toward Red Russia and China may result from pressures exerted on the Eisenhower Administration by such contrasting personalities as Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is expected to succeed Winston Churchill as prime minister.
Eden has informed Secretary John Foster Dulles that Britain cannot and will not join in any military effort to hold the Quemoy and Matsu Islands against Chinese attack. His people, especially the labor unions, are asking why Britishers should die for two barren, volcanic blobs of earth within artillery range of hostile mainland batteries. Recruiting and drafting men for such a venture would be almost impossible, according to 10 Downing Street.
REASONS — Eden's warning has had a profound effect at Washington. For if our closest Ally will not support us here, it is certain that the United Nations Assembly will not give even moral sanction to a Quemoy-Matsu defense, or provide any military reinforcement.
Finally, the British do not place great faith in Chiang Kai-shek, either as a military expert or an exponent of true democracy. They do not hold with the Knowland-Bridges belief that millions of mainland Chinese will rush to his bedraggled colors, if he should make a move to rescue them from the Reds. In official and popular British opinion, Chiang is all washed-up!
BIG THREE—Senator George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, voices the opinion of most Britishers and many Americans in demanding an immediate Eisenhower-Churchill-Bulganin conference. Indeed, despite demurrers, there is belief that the Administration does not resent his suggestion. George is really running interference for Ike against Republican Chiang-firers.
Europeans are almost unanimous for such a meeting, despite past failures and Yalta warnings against secret diplomacy. Recent revelations of the devastating nature of H-bombs have necessitated one last desperate try for world peace and agreement. After all, they live under the guns, except that now they are A and H detonations.
Moreover, a high-level talk is a domestic political necessity with Churchill and Premier Faure of France. The British Conservatives face election this or next year, and they must run as the peace party. Faure has only a narrow majority in Parliament and many of his nominal supporters clamor for the diplomatic gesture proposed by Senator George and Foreign Secretary Eden.
NEEDED — Senator George also took Ike and Dulles off the hook with respect to Red China's participation in such a powwow. Facing realities, the veteran Georgian points out that no Far Eastern settlement can be achieved without Mao Tse-tung's concurrence. In his absence, any agreement would be only an uneasy, armed truce that would resolve no basic conflicts in the Far East.
Eisenhower and Dulles have not dared to entertain such a thought hitherto, in view of the Knowland-Bridges-McCarthy faction's horror of any dickering with the Chinese Reds. But the fact is that, as realists, Ike and Dulles know that eventually we must do diplomatic business with the de facto government of China, if the Formosan crisis is not to be the prelude to World War III.

EASY REDUCING
Science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose.
Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .
counteracts hunger
Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full, contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.
fat goes fast
You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.
We certify that ALL-IN-ONE CAPSULES are entirely safe for human consumption

DECLINE OF A MANIA

A MAGAZINE for collectors reports that prices of antiques are declining from their peak and that the downturn is especially noticeable in prices for junk that passed as antiques several months ago.

The craze to obtain possession of any article, no matter how worthless, if it was old became a mania during recent years of easy money. For years there was a steadily increasing demand for genuine antiques in furniture, dishes, etc., but cracked, damaged and defective articles found few takers and at low prices.

It was in this category that demand rose by leaps and bounds in recent years. Antique shops, their shelves denuded, stocked up their rooms with glued and patched junk and went to town. Trash brought higher prices than did genuine antiques a few years previously.

But now the trend has been reversed. Genuine antiques are in great demand, and at the highest prices ever paid, but they are scarce. People who have them seem to be holding on to them. But people no longer want junk and the market has become glutted with it.

Perhaps there is an indication in this of the future trend of America's economy. Perhaps the time is not long distant when people will refuse to pay inflated prices for inferior merchandise. This wasn't a country of junk in the past, and it may again become a nation addicted to true values.

VACCINE FOR MILLIONS

NATIONWIDE distribution of enough Salk anti-polio vaccine to vaccinate nine million children is now well under way. This comes in anticipation of a favorable report from the scientific evaluation center established to measure results of the 400,000 children inoculated last spring. This report is expected to be made public about April 1, and is awaited with great interest by the scientific world. While the report is expected to be favorable, elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent leaks, which is understandable.

The vaccine now available was purchased through contributions by a recent March of Dimes. In addition to this supply pharmaceutical manufacturers are piling up stocks available to private physicians. Scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning are positive that the report will not be entirely favorable.

If Salk vaccine proves to be the answer to polio it would be the occasion of worldwide rejoicing. Elimination of polio would be the greatest forward step in medical science in this generation. The dimes given in the past are playing a big part in the fight against a dread disease, and a battle which may be on the verge of winning.

WASHINGTON — A drastic modification of the stiff-necked American policy toward Red Russia and China may result from pressures exerted on the Eisenhower Administration by such contrasting personalities as Sen. Eden has informed Secretary John Foster Dulles that Britain cannot and will not join in any military effort to hold the Quemoy and Matsu Islands against Chinese attack. His people, especially the labor unions, are asking why Britishers should die for two barren, volcanic blobs of earth within artillery range of hostile mainland batteries. REASONS — Eden's warning has had a profound effect at Washington. For if our closest ally will not support us here, it is certain that the United Nations Assembly will not give even moral sanction to a Quemoy-Matsu defense, or provide any military reinforcement.

The British advance even more realistic arguments. In their opinion, there is a chance that the Americans might be forced to withdraw from these offshore points, if the Russians furnish planes, submarines and heavy artillery to the Chinese Communists.

Such a military disaster, on top of the Reds' success in Indochina, would be fatal to Western prestige among Asians. It would weaken every alliance we have negotiated for collective security in this area, from South Korea to Thailand.

Therefore, according to the British, it would be wiser to bow out than to be driven out. It is bitter tea they brew, but they are more experienced in Oriental psychology than American diplomats.

SUPPORT — London will support us in any resistance to attempted conquest of Formosa and the Pescadores, at least morally, for this would be regarded as another example of major Communist aggression. Even so, it will be difficult to persuade the British people to make grievous sacrifices for these vital links in our Pacific defense chain. It would be like asking American boys to die for Madagascar!

Finally, the British do not place great faith in Chiang Kai-shek, either as a military expert or an exponent of true democracy. They do not hold with the Knowland-Bridges belief that millions of mainland Chinese will rush to his bedraggled colors, if he should make a move to rescue them from the Reds. In official and popular British opinion, Chiang is all washed-up!

BIG THREE—Senator George, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, voices the opinion of most Britishers and many Americans in demanding an immediate Eisenhower-Churchill-Bulgarian conference. Indeed, despite demurrers, there is belief that the Administration does not resent his suggestion. George is really running interference for Ike against Republican Chiang-firsters.

Europeans are almost unanimous for such a meeting, despite past failures and Yalta warnings against secret diplomacy. Recent revelations of the devastating nature of H-bombs have necessitated one last desperate try for world peace and agreement. After all, they live under the guns, except that now they are A and H detonations.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Whenever any Administration in Washington takes a position on any subject, there is always a clique of distinguished names that is used for supporting applause. The same names often appeared in the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations as now appear in the Eisenhower Administration. For many of these men, it is always "God's in his heaven: All's right with the world."

Unfortunately for their reputations, all has not gone well, certainly with the universal desire for a restored and permanent peace. The war, which commenced in 1914, has managed in one form or another to continue to this day. The pessimists who questioned the virtue of secret diplomacy and deals without principle have been justified by the course of events.

And so, one comes across comments concerning the Yalta Agreements which are not borne out by the publication of the Yalta Documents. For instance, Harry Truman, then Vice President of the United States, said of them:

"We're going to look forward to the most glorious period in the history of the world."

Surely, the period between 1945 and 1955 has not been the most glorious in the history of the world from the standpoint of achievement of any kind.

James Byrnes, who was present at Yalta, said:

"Every person should be proud of the role played by the President, especially in the discussion of economic and political problems . . . I was tremendously impressed by the comradeship and genuine affection showed by the three leaders."

Elliott Roosevelt, in his book, "As He Saw It," gives us this:

"Harry Hopkins is my witness for the statement that the unity of Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt was a firmer and more tangible thing at Yalta than at Teheran. And it was evident that Father's role, even more than at earlier conferences, was that of leader. It is not by chance that he sat in the middle, when the pictures were taken. He dominated Winston Churchill more completely than before; Joseph Stalin was likewise prepared to heed Father's counsel, to accept Father's solutions."

The evidence in the documents shows that Stalin was a master of the situation and that the only one of the three who raised his voice in favor of the morality of Western civilization was Winston Churchill in his remarkable defense of free elections.

Admiral William D. Leahy seems to have been one of the very few men in public life, particularly among those who were close to President Roosevelt, who suffered misgivings. He said:

"The proposed peace seemed to me a frightening sowing of dragon's teeth that carried germs of an appalling war revenge at some time in the distant future. There was another compelling factor that kept me from sharing in the feeling of great hope, almost exultation that prevailed in our American delegation as we left Yalta: as to the practicability of maintaining world peace through the United Nations. Revulsion and anger. Finely cut lips compressed out of shape. She gripped her pocketbook, made as if to rise and thought better of it.

"What are you doing on this train?" she said.

"I am not going to your house on Wolf Hill, if that's what you're asking," Andrus said. "And I'm not any more anxious to talk to you than you are to talk to me, Miss Dwight. What I do want is some information. If you'll give it to me, I'll remove myself."

She considered that. "What information?"

"Did I leave the silver flask Regina gave me in your house in Wolf Hill?"

Susan had packed the wedding presents, going carefully through every room to see that nothing inadvertently moved had been omitted. "No," she said.

Regina met Susan at the door of the house on Wolf Hill. It was a big, ugly, sprawling place with huge windows and a cupola, set in four acres of ground. Inside it was comfortable and spacious, but everything was just a little shabby. But there wasn't much money now. What had seemed like a good-sized fortune, left to Regina by her father, had dwindled to almost nothing.

Regina said, smiling, "A taxi. You extravagant creature. You could just as well have taken the bus." She kissed Susan and exclaimed over the perfume and the champagne. "You shouldn't, Sue!"

Susan said, "Nonsense. Everett's pay me more money than I know what to do with."

Regina was the taller of the two with a slightly fuller figure. Shiny black hair fell softly over her forehead. At 34 her creamy skin was without a line and as smooth as satin. She had been born beautiful. Age wouldn't change her. Her blue eyes were unclouded, tranquil. She evidently hadn't heard that Jim Andrus was out of prison. Susan's tautness went. Science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose.

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

counteracts hunger

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full, contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing, unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

We certify that ALL-IN-ONE CAPSULES are entirely safe for human consumption.

Mrs. Collis Young Elected President Of Monday Club

Carl Leist Gives Illustrated Talk

Election of officers and an illustrated lecture by Carl C. Leist were highlights of the Monday club meeting, held in Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson officiated at the session, when Mrs. Collis A. Young was elected club president for the coming year.

Her corps of officers will include: Mrs. Howard Newell Stevenson, first vice president; Mrs. George C. Barnes, second vice president; Mrs. Milton Patterson, recording secretary; Mrs. R. Rae Bales, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Anna Chandler, historian; and Mrs. George H. Adkins, member-at-large.

Mrs. Edwin Shane is to serve as chairman of a program committee, assisted by Mrs. Richard Robinson, and Mrs. Barton Deming with Mrs. James Reichelderfer in charge of music.

Mrs. Johnson appointed Mrs. Young and Mrs. Barnes to serve as delegates to a state convention. Mrs. Forest Croman and Mrs. Deming were named as alternates to the meeting.

Following the business session, Mrs. Cleon Webb, program chairman, presented Carl C. Leist, who used as his topic, "Cradle of Democracy".

In introducing his subject, which he illustrated with colored slides, Mr. Leist presented a reproduction of a famous painting of Christ, stating that "God saw fit to send his son so we would have religious freedom. Our forefathers sought freedom and it was God's grace that permitted them to gain this freedom."

Continuing, the speaker stated, "We have sites in our own country that represent our cradle of civilization."

Mr. Leist took his audience on a tour of Independence Hall in Philadelphia. There he showed the Liberty Bell, the desk where the original Declaration of Independence was signed and a pen and ink set used in the signing.

From there the group traveled by pictures to the Old Custum House which served as the Bank of the United States. The next step was Elfreth's Alley, which is the only street preserved as it was in 1736 and still in use today.

Also shown was a room in the home of Betsy Ross, where she was approached by General George Washington and asked to make the first American flag.

The old Christ Church, which speaks of solemnity from every part, was viewed by the group, with the pews of George Washington and John Pen depicted. Also shown was the United Nations corner where men of any nation can offer prayer.

Contrasted with these historic spots were views of modern Philadelphia.

Washington D. C., with its cherry blossoms was shown, as were distant and closeup views of the capital building and the white house, with Lincoln's bedroom, the Blue Room and the Red Room especially emphasized.

Other points of interest in Washington depicted by the speaker were: The Justice Building, Library of Congress, the Pentagon, the Smithsonian Institute, Old Ford Theater, where Lincoln was assassinated; the Washington monument, and a night scene at cherry blossom time.

After viewing the Lincoln monument and the Jefferson monument, the group traveled with the speaker to Mt. Vernon on the Potomac, the historic home of George Washington, where many scenes were shown.

On to Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, the club members saw many of the innovations of Jefferson, who was an architect, lawyer, violinist and inventor.

Gettysburg and the battlefields of the Civil War were shown, as well as the railroad station where Lincoln arrived for his famous speech and the site of the speech itself.

In conclusion, Mr. Leist showed slides of the scenery of Pickaway and Hocking counties, which can rival any of the spots in the forty-eight states of the United States.

4-H Club Girls Give Clothes Storage Tips

Inadequate storage and messy closets are a headache. Nancy Crossland and Sandra Vickers, 4-H Club girls of Springfield, showed homemakers at Farm and Home Week how to improve clothes storage cheaply.

Yarn covered coat hangers, for instance, will keep jumpers and blouses from slipping off onto the closet floor. Homemakers can make own skirt hangers by buying plastic girder clothespins to fasten skirts on to hangers.

Belts which are all hanging on one hook can be separated by putting gooseneck screws in the bottom of a wooden hanger. Then each belt has its own hook.

An inexpensive shoe rack can be made by mounting two towel racks, a small one above a larger one, on a piece of plywood. With a place to keep shoes, they are not scattered all over the floor.

Homemakers who do not want to put nails in walls can hang shoebags by safety pins from hangers. It will take about three hangers to hold the weight of the shoes.

Storage space also can be released by rolling crinolin petticoats an afternoon of piano music given by the pupils of Pattie Horne of Chillicothe.

Among the pupils who took part in the recital, held in the dining room of the Warner Hotel of Chillicothe, were: Dona Rose and Jane Rae, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Dresbach of Hallsville.

Father Of Groom Officiates At Hall-Gibbs Nuptial Rites

Mrs. Hazel Hall of Jackson is announcing the marriage of her only daughter, Miss Shirley Ann Hall, to John Charles Gibbs, son of the Rev. and Mrs. O. F. Gibbs of E. Main St., Circleville.

The ceremony was performed in the Circleville First Evangelical United Brethren church. The Rev. Mr. Gibbs, father of the groom, officiated at the double-ring service in the presence of the immediate families.

Miss Lucille Kirkwood, organist, played fifteen minutes of nuptial music preceding the ceremony.

Thomerson-Elsea Engagement Told In Wilmington

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Thomerson of 561 N. Walnut St., Wilmington, formerly of Circleville, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ann Louise, to Robert Irvin Elsea.

Miss Thomerson, the granddaughter of J. Sam Morris and the late Mrs. Addie V. Morris, is a graduate of Circleville High School, class of 1952. She presently is enrolled at Bliss Business College, Columbus.

Mr. Elsea, the son of Mrs. Paul Carruthers of Cannonsburg, Pa., and the late Asa Elsea, makes his home with his grandparents, the Rev. and Mrs. Sam C. Elsea of W. High St. He also is a graduate of Circleville High School. He had served four years with the Navy and presently is enrolled at Ohio University, Athens, majoring in Industrial Arts.

The wedding is to be an event of September.

Are Overweight Women Easily Embarrassed?

Generally, overweight women are more self-conscious than you think. If excess weight is your problem you will benefit by this letter from Mrs. Mildred Riffe, 34 Wilwood Ave., New-ark, Ohio. She writes: "I have been taking Renne for just a short time, but have found so much improvement in my health. I have already lost 25 lbs. and feel more ambitious. My blood pressure is lower, and I sleep better. My friends have remarked how much neater looking I am. With Renne Concentrate I didn't have to starve myself or go on a diet. It's wonderful."

Thousands of others have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugist and ask for four ounces of liquid Renne Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple easy way to lose pounds of excess fat doesn't seem to disappear, more youthful curves—if reducible almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get Renne.

Public Interest In Business Secrets Grows

Inside Workings Spark Many Ventures In Odd Lot Of Fields

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Public interest in the inside workings of business continues to grow.

It sparks dramatic and musical comedy hits on Broadway. It lifts novels to the best seller lists. It inspires television shows.

A senatorial study of the stock market makes front pages of the newspapers. Stockholders meetings, once drab cut-and-dried affairs, now draw record crowds of festive or quarrelsome men and women.

Public attention has been especially captured of late by the dramatic notions of the fiction writers—novelists, playwrights, movie screenwriters, radio and TV scriptwriters.

They find a growing reading or viewing public for their accounts of what makes business tick, of unethical jockeying for position by executives, big and little, of the drama behind the doors when boards of directors meet, or along the assembly lines of factories, or around the tables where labor and management bargain.

Some businessmen are showing signs of getting restive and a little resentful under this clinical attention.

They remember that once before the public got interested in business as a subject of fiction. Frank Norris, Theodore Dreiser, Upton Sinclair raked up some mossy stuff. And Sinclair Lewis' Babbitt was carried over into popular usage as a common noun to describe the more promotional type of businessman.

The second World War set off the second wave of interest. This time it's in the drama of business itself. At first the writers played with the quirks of some industry or profession. The hucksters purported to show readers the inner secrets of advertising agencies. The movies made a few pictures around the fairly glamorous side of that industry. And the theater exposed some of its seamier side, too. A current best selling novel takes a look at book publishing, among other things.

Of late the writers have turned to the industrialist, a being they once dismissed as dull. Executive Suite, a novel later made into a movie, dealt with a battle for power among corporate executives when the president dropped dead.

A Broadway comedy hit, the stockholders' meeting and moved into top management's plush of Solid Gold Cadillac, started in a fice. A musical comedy hit, the Pajama Game, bases its plot on the struggle of a labor union to get a 7½ cent an hour pay raise—a theme that once wouldn't have inspired either music or comedy.

Latest to take up the fad is television, both at the comedy-secretary level and in the serious drama field.

The job and personal problems of a factory foreman and workers on an assembly line was recently beamed into the homes of the nation in the program Man In The Corner.

The TV drama Patterns was repeated by request for a wide audience after its story of cut-throat competition at the corporate executive level brought much viewer comment.

Businessmen are showing signs of being unhappy about some of this show of interest in their way of life. A few spokesmen for business are already denying that lack of ethics is general among top executives or that corporate affairs are run on any such scale of ruthless personal ambition.

Hal Boyle Says:

Wife's Silence—A Club

NEW YORK (AP)—Silence is a wife's best weapon; it upsets a husband.

A smart wife (is there really any other kind) learns to use silence as a club to knock that man in her life off balance.

Every husband leans heavily for guidance on the messages that bubble so dependably from his wife's vocal chords. They tell him whether he's doing all right, or making a mess of things.

Naturally all this tremendous wordfall doesn't register in his feeble brain. He doesn't hear half of it. He doesn't need to. He learns to tell by the tone when he should tune in and really start listening.

But when his wife falls silent, his ears immediately snap to attention. He feels something unnatural has happened—as if he were watching Niagara Falls and it suddenly ran dry. He is totally lost. What has he done wrong? He must have done something wrong. Why won't she tell him?

Husbands don't mind being bawled out when they deserve it half so much as they resent being clubbed by a wife's silence.

"My wife never shuts up except when she's mad at me," explained a husband. "But we've been married 20 years, and she has accumulated 836 different grudges against me. When she quits talking to me, how can I tell which one of the 836 reasons has made her mad at that particular moment? If I try to find out and guess the wrong reason, that only gives her another thing to be made about. It isn't fair."

What are the worst? A poll of husbands, who insist on remaining anonymous purely in the interest of self-defense, gave these as the "seven most brutal forms of wifely silence":

1. The "why can't you read my mind like it was a crystal ball silence." In the midst of a pleasant dinner your wife suddenly ceases speaking. The next words you hear from her, just after she switches off the bedroom light, are, "Why didn't you pass the butter to me? You know I like lots of butter on a baked potato. It ruined my whole meal. Why didn't I ask you? Do I have to ask you for everything?"

2. The "fence straddling silence." You are driving to visit friends and come to an intersection. "We turn right or left?" you ask. Silence. You turn right. More silence for 10 miles. Then your wife gives you five reasons why you should have known all along you took the wrong road.

3. The "day the ghost walks silence." You bring your paycheck home. Your wife looks at it, shakes her head, and puts it in the pocket of her housecoat without a word. You feel like a pauper. After all, small as it is, a paycheck is a kind of victory for a man. It shows he's been out fighting for his family. He expects a kiss for it—or at least a hug.

4. The "yes, I really mean no silence." You ask if it's all right to play some Saturday golf. Your wife shrugs noncommittally and turns away. All afternoon you wonder what's wrong. It ruins your game. When you return, you find out there were 43 things about the house your wife wanted you to help her with on this one day of the year. No later can ever make up for it.

5. The "if you really loved me you wouldn't have to ask silence." "What would you honestly like most as a present for our wedding anniversary, baby?" But baby merely lifts her eyes in resignation. You have taken away all the enchantment with your simple question. Don't you know what baby wants?

6. The "don't take me for granted silence." Jokingly, you say, "I know I'm no bargain, honey, but you'd still rather be married to me than any other guy you ever met, wouldn't you?" A thoughtful look comes into her eyes and she hesitates visibly before saying, "Why, of course, silly." But that fraction of silence—it puts you on a real teeter-totter. What other guy had she thought of?

7. The "keep him in his doghouse silence." You have made a fool of yourself in some way the night before and across the breakfast toast your wife ooms up in iceberg silence. You cringe in guilt, your nerves cry out for help, for some token that she still recognizes you as a member of the human race. If only she would even scream at you—All husbands agree that this kind of wifely silence is the lowest form of feminine cruelty.

Federal Bureau Says Ohio Needs $5 Billion In Roads

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cost of needed highway construction in Ohio through 1964 was estimated by the Bureau of Public Roads Monday at $5,036,000,000.

The bureau's long awaited report to Congress placed the cost of all needed highway work in the nation for the 10-year period at 101 billion dollars.

The survey, made at the director of Congress, is intended to provide an up to the minute picture of the highway situation. Congress is considering several proposals for an accelerated highway building program.

The interstate highway system—major highways crisscrossing the nation—would require nearly one-fourth of the huge total, or about $2,253,000,000, the bureau estimated.

Costs of highway needs in the various states range from 220 million dollars in Nevada to more than eight billion dollars in California. The breakdown showed that only four states need a larger expenditure than Ohio—California, New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. (Estimated cost of Ohio's part of the interstate system is $1,361,000,000, split between 537 million for rural and 824 million dollars for urban roads.

The primary and secondary road systems also receive federal aid. The report estimated the Ohio primary system needs at $1,200,000,000, with 622 million for rural and 578 million for urban roads. It placed the state's secondary system needs at 475 million dollars, with 384 million for rural and 91 million for urban roads.

The report estimated that federal aid highways in Ohio would cost $3,036,000,000 and that needed highways to be built without federal aid would cost 2 billion dollars.

Strictly state highways, the report said, would cost 320 million dollars in Ohio, split 238 million for rural and 82 million dollars for urban roads. Cost of other Ohio roads and streets was placed at $1,680,000,000 with 794 million for rural and 886 million dollars for urban roads.

Birthday Party Ends In Tragedy

WEST LIBERTY (AP)—Two little girls were killed yesterday in an auto-truck crash while returning from a birthday party for one of them.

The State Highway Patrol identified the victims as Kathy Ward, just-turned 8, daughter of Mrs. Stewart Ward of Rt. 2, DeGraff, and Joyce Kruse, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kruse of Springfield.

Mrs. Ward, driver of the car, was injured critically. Keith Forbush, 28, of Dayton, driver of the Blue Bird Baking Co. truck, received minor injuries.

The highway patrol said Mrs. Ward's auto apparently skidded on ice into the path of the truck.

Chiang Belittles Strength Of Reds

TAIPEI (AP)—Amid fears abroad that the Chinese Reds soon may attack his offshore island outposts, Chiang Kai-shek belittles their strength.

Chiang expressed his views in a message for today's Youth Day anniversary of the death of 72 martyrs killed in an abortive uprising against the Manchus, March 29, 1911. The 1911 uprising led to the establishment of the Republic of China.

Chiang said the choice of Free China by 14,000 prisoners of war in Korea in January last year and 17,000 civilians in the Tachens last month indicated countless numbers on the mainland would join the Nationalists if they had a chance.

Public Interest In Business Secrets Grows

Inside Workings Spark Many Ventures In Odd Lot Of Fields

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Public interest in the inside workings of business continues to grow.

It sparks dramatic and musical comedy hits on Broadway. It lifts novels to the best seller lists. It inspires television shows.

A senatorial study of the stock market makes front pages of the newspapers. Stockholders meetings, once drab cut-and-dried affairs, now draw record crowds of festive or quarrelsome men and women.

Public attention has been especially captured of late by the dramatic notions of the fiction writers—novelists, playwrights, movie screenwriters, radio and TV scriptwriters.

They find a growing reading or viewing public for their accounts of what makes business tick, of unethical jockeying for position by executives, big and little, of the drama behind the doors when boards of directors meet, or along the assembly lines of factories, or around the tables where labor and management bargain.

Some businessmen are showing signs of getting restive and a little resentful under this clinical attention.

They remember that once before the public got interested in business as a subject of fiction. Frank Norris, Theodore Dreiser, Upton Sinclair raked up some mossy stuff. And Sinclair Lewis' Babbitt was carried over into popular usage as a common noun to describe the more promotional type of business man.

The second World War set off the second wave of interest. This time it's in the drama of business itself. At first the writers played with the quirks of some industry or profession. The hucksters purported to show readers the inner secrets of advertising agencies. The movies made a few pictures around the fairly unglamorous side of that industry. And the theater exposed some of its seamier side, too. A current best selling novel takes a look at book publishing, among other things.

Of late the writers have turned to the industrialist, a being they once dismissed as dull. Executive Suite, a novel later made into a movie, dealt with a battle for power among corporate executives when the president dropped dead.

A Broadway comedy hit, the stockholders' meeting and moved into top management's plush of Solid Gold Cadillac, started in a fies. A musical comedy hit, the Pajama Game, bases its plot on the struggle of a labor union to get a 7½ cent an hour pay raise—a theme that once wouldn't have inspired either music or comedy.

Latest to take up the fad is television, both at the comedy-secretary level and in the serious drama field.

Atomic Future: Is It Here?

Getting Atoms Into Harness Gives Industry Big Problem

EDITOR'S NOTE — How far away is the day the atom will come into your living room? This giant is just waiting to be put to work, but getting it harnesses poses many problems for private industry. This article, first in a series of four, gives the background.

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wonderful world of the atom lies close at hand. In that world—

When your automobile frets and sputters, you will have the motor "X-rayed" instead of torn down. Pictures of its insides, taken with cobalt 60, will locate the trouble.

Your home, of course, will be lighted with energy taken from a nuclear reactor. And you will ride on trains and ships powered by the atom.

It will purify sea-water for irrigation and bring the life-giving water across mountains to the desert. In factories, radioactive bracelets will guard the worker against mangle by dangerous machines. If the jaws of the machine come too close to his hands, radiation from the bracelets agitate a Geiger counter. It instantly stops the machine.

Buck Rogers stuff? No, indeed. Some of these things already are here. Others, many others, are beyond the experimental stage.

Then, does this mean that the Atomic Age finally has flowered for peaceful instead of military purposes?

Well, yes and no.

Last month, a congressional committee questioned many witnesses — businessmen, engineers, patent lawyers, labor leaders, experts of the Atomic Energy Commission—in a long series of hearings. They all attacked this problem:

"How to harness atomic energy, on a grand scale, to enhance the living standard of every American."

A bright red thread of impatience, almost frustration, ran through the hearings.

Here is the American industrial system, big, rich, powerful, presumably equal to any mechanical problem.

And here is the atom, the tamed giant, waiting to work. One pound of fissionable uranium equals, in reliable energy, 2,600,000 pounds of coal.

Yet, the United States is not generating commercial electricity from the atom. "Fossil fuels," coal, gas and oil, are still the main sources of energy. How long will they last? Geologists disagree. The profusion of benefits from the atom are visible on the horizon, but not yet attained.

Hence, the impatience. Each witness was asked, in effect, "What's holding us up? When are we going to get the show on the road?"

A year ago, and even later, there was a simple answer — "Government."

The $12 billion atomic empire was the exclusive property of the United States government. That meant installations, reactors, materials, and—most important—the knowledge necessary to use them. All this was a government preserve.

The reason, of course, was national security.

But as time passed, it became apparent that other nations, friends and enemies, were acquiring a vast fund of knowledge about the atom. Some American scientists say the Europeans already know as much, possibly more, about peaceful uses than we do.

Moreover, for years, there has been a feeling in Washington that if atomic energy is to be fully applied to ordinary living, American industry must come in, and on a big scale.

So, last fall, Congress passed a brand new atomic energy act. In philosophy, it is very different from the old law. It provides, principally, for two new approaches:

1. Opening the door part way for private industry to use and develop atomic energy.

2. Greater cooperation with other nations in the peaceful uses of the atom.

Analysts of the new law, notably Everett L. Hollis of General Electric, emphasize that it "reduces," but does not end, government monopoly. The AEC retains wide controls. Hollis sees the new pattern as a team effort between government and industry.

Industry stands on the threshold. What lies ahead? A glittering vista and a new set of problems.

Sokol'sky's

We now know from the contents of the documents that Winston Churchill could not at Yalta have believed what he said at the time: "The impression that I brought back from the Crimea and from all my other contacts is that Marshal Stalin and the other Soviet leaders wish to live in honorable friendship and democracy with the Western democracies."

This must have been diplomacy rather than statesmanship speaking, for if any man suffered from a squeeze play, it was Winston Churchill at Yalta who found himself between Roosevelt and Stalin. He was almost an unwanted middleman. In fact, Roosevelt occasionally indicated to Stalin that the British were a peculiar people who liked to have their cake and eat it too, thus giving Stalin a broad hint that he and Churchill were not a unit.

I can only add, to be impartial, that the Republican Senator from Vermont, Warren Austin, said of Yalta that "It's the answer to a prayer."

Girl, 8, Darts Into Path Of Car

FRANKLIN (AP)—Patricia Gritten, 8, started across the street to get into her father's car yesterday afternoon. But she was struck by another automobile and was injured fatally.

Her father, Robert, witnessed the accident at Central School. Patricia was on the crosswalk and an automatic amber blinker was operating, police said.

Mayor, 28, Quits In Town Dispute

CINCINNATI (AP)—Walter L. Moore Jr., 28-year-old mayor of suburban Newtown, resigned yesterday. An audit of his office by state auditors disclosed a shortage of $1,454. Moore said he had paid the money to the village and hired a private accountant to find the leak.

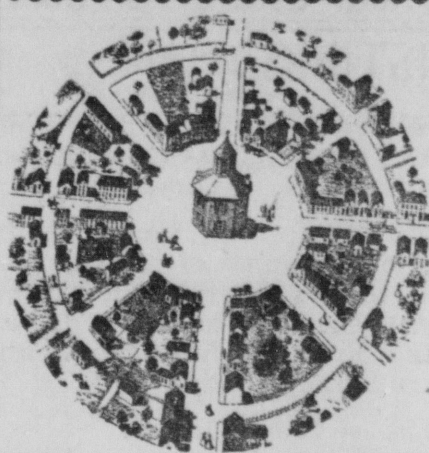

He said he decided to resign because he had "to submit to unmerciful verbal abuse from one member of council and I have lost more working days from my job while this matter has been in dispute."

Judge Recognizes Man's Superstition

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Elijah Walton, 48, pleaded no defense to a manslaughter charge in the fatal stabbing of Basil Jones, 27, during an argument. But when Judge Alexander Waugh set April 13 for sentencing, Walton protested: "Oh no, judge, not the 13th! I'm superstitious." The judge was obliging. "Very well, then," he said, "you shall be sentenced April 22."

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

"Junior — you really should be ashamed of yourself for trying to make a deal with your Dad for a motor-bike if you brush your teeth. The idea!"

"I want you to sit down and listen, while I tell you what the youngsters about your age had to do a long time ago."

"Do you really appreciate what an easy time you have — with a room all your own, always nice and warm when you go to bed or when you get up in the morning, and, having nearby, a bathroom which is always comfortable and has all the conveniences anyone could wish? And you don't have a thing to do in the morning but get up, eat your breakfast and be on your way to school — half the time your father or I taking you in the car."

"Your great-great grand-daddy didn't have it so easy. He had to jump out of a warm bed into his room which was so cold that it would freeze icicles, and his bathroom was a pretty breezy place. And, too, he had a lot of chores that had to be done even before he could sit down for breakfast."

"HE HAD to start early, to get to school in time, for it was a mile or more from home — and he walked."

"Now just a minute — I'm not through yet. Maybe, as you say, this is 'old stuff' but I am going to make you listen to something my grandmother had in her little scrapbook. You never heard this — I am sure — or you wouldn't have done what you did."

"I first want you to know that they didn't have the nice soft toothbrushes like you have, nor the kind that don't shed their bristles. The very first they did have looked a good bit like our paint brushes do today and were made of pig-bristles or horse-hair. Don't you think they would be pretty scratchy? Later on, they made them a little softer and handier to use."

"A small stick was whittled into a handle like your own brush, and on the end was tied a piece of thick carpet or, maybe, a piece of fur from a rabbit or a squirrel. They didn't have tooth pastes, and powders for scrubbing the teeth were seldom offered in the stores."

"Even if they did have such things you could buy, people did not have much money in those days, so they tried to make their own from materials cheap in price—but the products could hardly be appetizing. But now let's see what grandmother's clipping has to say."

"It starts out 'Means of Preserving Health and Preventing Disease'. — 'When washing or rinsing the mouth shall be found insufficient to keep the teeth clean, and to prevent tartar, which naturally collects on them, they should be rubbed with a thick lather of castile soap, or with some simple and innocent dentifrice, such as powder of the burnt crust of bread; chalk; or a mixture of cream of tartar and red Peruvian bark; to either of which a little of very finely powdered brick dust, or pumice stone, may be added."

"Soot, snuff, tobacco ashes, and a mixture of burnt alum and refined sugar are also used by some. Of late — powdered charcoal has become a popular medicine for this purpose."

"Now, Junior, — do you still think you are a badly abused boy?"

"Gee — Mom — I'm sorry! Honestly — I didn't know."

Atomic Future: Is It Here?

Getting Atoms Into Harness Gives Industry Big Problem

EDITOR'S NOTE — How far away is the day the atom will come into your living room? This giant is just waiting to be put to work, but getting it harnesses poses many problems for private industry. This article, first in a series of four, gives the background.

By RELMAN MORIN
WASHINGTON (AP)—The wonderful world of the atom lies close at hand. In that world—

When your automobile frets and sputters, you will have the motor "X-rayed" instead of torn down. Pictures of its insides, taken with cobalt 60, will locate the trouble. Your home, of course, will be lighted with energy taken from a nuclear reactor. And you will ride on trains and ships powered by the atom.

It will purify sea-water for irrigation and bring the life-giving water across mountains to the desert. In factories, radioactive bracelets will guard the worker against mangle by dangerous machines. If the jaws of the machine come too close to his hands, radiation from the bracelets agitate a Geiger counter. It instantly stops the machine.

Buck Rogers stuff? No, indeed. Some of these things already are here. Others, many others, are beyond the experimental stage.

Then, does this mean that the Atomic Age finally has flowered for peaceful instead of military purposes?

Well, yes and no.

Last month, a congressional committee questioned many witnesses — businessmen, engineers, patent lawyers, labor leaders, experts of the Atomic Energy Commission—in a long series of hearings. They all attacked this problem:

"How to harness atomic energy, on a grand scale, to enhance the living standard of every American."

A bright red thread of impatience, almost frustration, ran through the hearings.

Here is the American industrial system, big, rich, powerful, presumably equal to any mechanical problem.

And here is the atom, the tamed giant, waiting to work. One pound of fissionable uranium equals, in releasable energy, 2,600,000 pounds of coal.

Yet, the United States is not generating commercial electricity from the atom. "Fossil fuels," coal, gas and oil, are still the main sources of energy. How long will they last? Geologists disagree. The profusion of benefits from the atom are visible on the horizon, but not yet attained.

Hence, the impatience. Each witness was asked, in effect, "What's holding us up? When are we going to get the show on the road?"

A year ago, and even later, there was a simple answer — "Government."

The $12 billion atomic empire was the exclusive property of the United States government. That meant installations, reactors, materials, and—most important—the

We now know from the contents of the documents that Winston Churchill could not at Yalta have believed what he said at the time: "The impression that I brought back from the Crimea and from all my other contacts is that Marshal Stalin and the other Soviet leaders wish to live in honorable friendship and democracy with the Western democracies."

This must have been diplomacy rather than statesmanship speaking, for if any man suffered from a squeeze play, it was Winston Churchill at Yalta who found himself between Roosevelt and Stalin. He was almost an unwanted middleman. In fact, Roosevelt occasionally indicated to Stalin that the British were a peculiar people who liked to have their cake and eat it too, thus giving Stalin a broad hint that he and Churchill were not a unit.

I can only add, to be impartial, that the Republican Senator from Vermont, Warren Austin, said of Yalta that "It's the answer to a prayer."

Colored Pictures Shown To Rotary

Acting as a contrast to winter's last fling here, colored pictures of Dr. Robert Smith's trip through the Caribbean and South America were shown to the Circleville Rotary last week.

Dr. Smith had shots of the Virgin Islands and the Panama Canal. He described these and other points of interest during his journey.

knowledge necessary to use them. All this was a government preserve.

The reason, of course, was national security.

But as time passed, it became apparent that other nations, friends and enemies, were acquiring a vast fund of knowledge about the atom. Some American scientists say the Europeans already know as much, possibly more, about peaceful uses than we do.

Moreover, for years, there has been a feeling in Washington that if atomic energy is to be fully applied to ordinary living, American industry must come in, and on a big scale.

So, last fall, Congress passed a brand new atomic energy act. In philosophy, it is very different from the old law. It provides, principally, for two new approaches:

1. Opening the door part way for private industry to use and develop atomic energy.

2. Greater cooperation with other nations in the peaceful uses of the atom.

Analysts of the new law, notably Everett L. Hollis of General Electric, emphasize that it "reduces," but does not end, government monopoly. The AEC retains wide controls. Hollis sees the new pattern as a team effort between government and industry.

Industry stands on the threshold. What lies ahead? A glittering vista and a new set of problems.

SAVE TIME, MONEY ON KITCHEN FLOORS

Why wear yourself out scrubbing your kitchen floor, or spend money constantly to wax it?

You don't have to do either one when you use Glaxo, the wonderful floor coating with the built-in seal against dirt. One application keeps your linoleum or asphalt tile shiny for months.

Glaxo dries in an hour to a water-clear, non-slip finish that defies dirt, grease and hard wear. Get up off your hands and knees, throw away the floor wax — use Glaxo!

Non-Pennant Condenders Hot In Spring Trials

Lowly Phillies, Braves, Pirates, Bosox Shine In Grapefruit Play

The Associated Press
It won't mean a thing next month when the pennant races start, but right now it's the Philadelphia Phillies, Milwaukee Braves, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox who are the golden boys of baseball's spring exhibition schedule.

Only one of the four—Milwaukee—figures as a pennant contender. The Phils seem to lack power. Pittsburgh doesn't have the experience, and the Red Sox don't have Ted Williams.

Yet, Philadelphia is the winning exhibition club to date, winning 10 of its 15 spring games. That's the best record (.667) in either league. Milwaukee followed with a .643 percentage on a 9-5 record. Pittsburgh and Boston both are 10-6 for a .625 mark.

Manager Pinky Higgins' Red Sox have the best record on a strictly league basis, however. They've won seven of eight against clubs in their own American League. The Chicago White Sox, 6-9 over-all, are second in the American with a 3-2 mark.

The Phils top the National with a 6-2 record against other clubs in the senior circuit. The Braves and the world champion New York Giants are next with 5-2 records, although the Giants have played all their National League games against the Chicago Cubs.

The battle between the leagues goes to the National at this stage by a 38-28 count.

The clubs will be breaking camp this week.

Relleg Coach Sees Change In Attitudes

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Dick Bartell, a great shortstop in his playing days and a fine coach for the Cincinnati Redlegs, is disturbed about the present day attitudes of baseball players.

"When I or anyone else goes to the present-day players to correct mistakes too often we run into the attitude that they already know all there is to know about playing this or that position," he said. Bartell, now 47, played short for 20 years.

"You'll notice, too," he said, "that you don't see young ball-players sitting around with old-timers discussing the game much any more. You seldom find a youngster asking a coach, the manager or a veteran for advice."

He had a possible explanation for this:

"Maybe this new independence is part of the world we now live in."

Cold and wet grounds at Tampa yesterday forced cancellation of the Reds' game with the Chicago White Sox. The "A" squad of the Cincinnati crew traveled to Orlando for the first game of 11 scheduled contests with the Washington Senators.

Waverly H. S. May Join Up In SCOL Loop
The South Central Ohio League, of which Circleville High School is one of five members, may possibly see the addition of a sixth school. Waverly High School has been invited to join the SCOL loop. Although representatives of the school have given tentative approval, the Waverly Board of Education has the final decision.

The school has commitments for two more years in the Southern Ohio Conference. Therefore, Waverly could not enter the SCOL until the 1957-58 season.

Addition of a sixth team would solve many schedule problems for SCOL officials. Their present five-team setup has thrown schedules out of balance, according to several coaches.

In the realm of SCOL activity,

"By then," he said, "we ought to start hitting. I hope so anyway."

"One reason we haven't done much hitting" during exhibition games so far, he explained, cold weather on the exhibition schedule yesterday. Just three games survived the elements.

Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 2-1, with Preston Ward hitting a two-run single in the third.

The New York Giants scored five runs in the eighth to overhaul the Cubs, but Chicago scored a deadlocking run in the ninth and broke it open with four in the 10th off Reuben Gomez for a 14-11 decision.

Kansas City defeated the Detroit Tigers 3-2 behind the six-inning, no-hit, no-run pitching of rookie Art Ceccarelli.

Indian Chief 'Disappointed' By Hitters

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Al Lopez, a "little disappointed" at the way the Cleveland Indians are hitting, predicted today his team will be ready in two weeks to start the American League season.

"By then," he said, "we ought to start hitting. I hope so anyway."

"One reason we haven't done much hitting" during exhibition games so far, he explained, "is because we've seen so many breaking-ball pitchers this spring."

The manager added that he was glad he saw them. It takes a while to get used to those cute guys, so we ought to be ready for anything by the time the season opens.

Ralph Kiner, obtained by the Indians from the Chicago Cubs, has not been hitting as advertised but Lopez remarks that "he is a much better outfielder than I thought he was."

"He isn't a bad outfielder at all. I've seen a lot worse. He isn't very fast and he doesn't look very graceful out there, but he does the job pretty well," Lopez continued.

The manager said Kiner "isn't hitting much, but I feel sure he'll get started soon. It was his fielding

Robinson Favored Over Lombardo

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, 10 years older than his foe but about 10 pounds heavier, battles Johnny Lombardo tonight in his third stake on the comeback trail.

The former world welterweight and middleweight champion was scheduled for No. 3 in Boston against George Small March 5. But the 34-year-old Robinson claims virus germs wrestled him and pinned him to the bed.

Cincinnati oddsmakers are making Robinson a 2-1 favorite over the 24-year-old Lombardo. But there are no takers.

Sign New Pact

GALLIPOLIS (AP)—Coach Neve Oliver says he and basketball scoring standout Bevo Francis have signed a new joint contract for $30,000 with the Boston Whirlwinds.

I was worried about and, as I said, he surprised me."

Reducing the squad to 32 yesterday, Lopez sent these men to the Tribe camp at Daytona Beach: Pitchers Dave Hoskins, Dick Tomaneck, Howard Rodemover, Marian Murszewski, and Stan Pitula; infielder Stan Pawloski and outfielder Lee Caffie.

Schoolgirl To Challenge Chilly Strait

VICTORIA, B. C. (AP)—A buxom Toronto schoolgirl with a yen to accomplish the unaccomplished is scheduled to challenge the rip tides and chill water of the Strait of Juan De Fuca tomorrow.

Quick-tongued Janice White, who says she's unsponsored and out for nothing but the satisfaction of swimming the 18-mile wide strait which thus far has rebuffed all challengers, is extremely confident she can turn the trick.

The 18-year-old Toronto lass, who stands 5-feet 7-inches and weighs 154 pounds, is scheduled to enter Juan De Fuca tomorrow morning.

The straight only last Aug. 9 turned back Florence Chadwick, the San Diego woman generally regarded as one of the world's top channel swimmers.

Miss Chadwick, sick and buffeted by rough water, climbed aboard an accompanying boat after she had thrashed her way 4½ miles toward Port Angeles, Wash., across the strait from this quaint bit of old England.

Miss White, who has been training for three weeks in the 45-degree water of the strait, will dip into Juan De Fuca at Point Gonzales on the outskirts of Victoria and swim in a southeasterly direction with the incoming tide for about four hours. She plans to cover nine miles in that time.

With the turn of the tide she will head due south toward Green Point, four miles east of Port Angeles.

Ohioan Slated For Chicago Bout

CHICAGO (AP)—L. C. Morgan, sensational lightweight of Youngstown, meets veteran Carl Stafford of Chicago here tonight in an eight-round bout.

Morgan, working his way towards a television main event, has compiled a brilliant record in his last three fights here.

He knocked out Chuck Adkins in two rounds, Ron Stribling in one and followed with an impressive victory over Benny Meeks.

Stafford has had 25 pro fights to seven for Morgan.

Santee Acclaimed

CHICAGO (AP)—Wes Santee, the Kansas miler who came within six-tenths of a second of the world indoor record, today was named the outstanding athlete of the Chicago Relays.

Santee ran a 4:04.2 Saturday night to set a new Bankers Mile Record.

'Billygoat' Still Using Famous Butt

NEW YORK (AP)—Paddy DeMarco might have lost his lightweight championship, but the Billygoat from Brooklyn hasn't lost his favorite offensive weapon—the butt.

"Who, me?" asked Paddy when Referee Harry Ebbs warned him for butting in the fifth round of his 10-round verdict over Libby Manzo in St. Nicholas Arena last night. "It was purely unintentional."

Paddy, who lost his last two outings by knockouts—the title to Jimmy Carter last November and in Paris in January—had a tough time with Manzo, a New Yorker who has a hard head.

When DeMarco decided to rough it up, Manzo was perfectly willing to go along and the crowd howled with glee. After Ebbs warned DeMarco and wagged his finger at Manzo, too, he permitted the boys to go at each other with vigor.

They didn't throw much leather, but their heads must have taken an awful battering.

Neither is much of a puncher, but Paddy did get in the best blows of the fight, two right hooks to the head in the second. Then he opened a cut over Manzo's eye.

At Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn, Danny Giovannelli of Brooklyn, who doesn't even have a manager, upset the dope by stopping Jimmy Martinez of Phoenix, Ariz., in 1:42 of the fifth.

U.S. Pro Grid Chief Scraps Peace Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League has dropped the political football back into the laps of the Canadian League leaders over the question of talent raids within American borders.

"It's up to the Canadian clubs now," Bell said. "They'll have to control their own situation and their own clubs."

Washington C. H. mentor Bob Shaw is leaving his coaching job there for a similar position in northern Ohio. Other SCOL schools include: Wilmington, Greenfield McClain and Hillsboro.

Waverly H. S. May Join Up In SCOL Loop

The South Central Ohio League, of which Circleville High School is one of five members, may possibly see the addition of a sixth school.

Waverly High School has been invited to join the SCOL loop. Although representatives of the school have given tentative approval, the Waverly Board of Education has the final decision.

The school has commitments for two more years in the Southern Ohio Conference. Therefore, Waverly could not enter the SCOL until the 1957-58 season.

Addition of a sixth team would solve many schedule problems for SCOL officials. Their present five-team setup has thrown schedules out of balance, according to several coaches.

In the realm of SCOL activity,

Circleville's Open Dump Remains Among Foremost Problems

Officials Know Present Setup Will Be Doomed

Gas Appliance Men Claim Incinerators Can Be Solution

Combined with the realization that hot Summer nights are not so far away, recent comments and incidents have reminded Circleville officials that the city dump remains a problem—and one that will continue to grow until it is solved.

The dumping area immediately west of the city has been the target for public protests at intervals, especially on the sultry nights of mid-Summer when the wind is from the west. City council conceded long ago that, "sooner or later," something will have to be done to modernize the municipality's handling of refuse.

In recent months, equipment salesmen have again sounded out city hall officials on prospects for changing the open dump to a sanitary fill operation—covering the refuse at the end of each day in deep ditches. And at least three efforts have also been made to establish a new refuse collection system for city residents.

More recently, in council meeting, City Service Director Dewey Speakman disclosed that conditions at the dump had become so bad he had to hire a bulldozer to "tidy-up" the unsightly premises. And it was brought out, simultaneously, that plans for a new river bridge west of the city will involve the dumping grounds.

LATEST in the series of incidents drawing renewed attention to the dump came during this year's Gasco Food Institute, sponsored by the Ohio Fuel Gas Company and The Herald, with the cooperation of local merchants. During the institute's annual showing, gas appliance experts discussed informally the advantages of gas-fired incinerators for the home.

While there was no intention to suggest the individual incinerators for use on any city-wide scale here in the near future, the discussion reflected the basic problem that exists in the city's antiquated system of handling garbage and rubbish. In similar fashion, city council at one time last year discussed the feasibility of cooperating with local home owners to install garbage disposal units.

However, those who talked of the merits of such equipment did not explain how home incinerators or disposal units could be considered cost-wise on a city-wide basis.

It seemed certain, despite any easy-pay arrangements which might be made, that such equipment would be far beyond the financial range of many home owners.

Circleville's open dump thus continues to radiate many unanswered questions.

Meanwhile, the Gas Appliance Manufacturer's Association insists that a city can be operated without garbage cans—and without the noise, odor and expense of garbage and trash collections.

The answer, according to the association, is the on-the-premises gas-fired incinerator, a compact unit for the basement or kitchen that gobbles up anything combustible in a matter of minutes.

"This isn't just a theory," says GAMA. "It's been tested beyond doubt by whole communities and found a boon not only to health, hygiene and home management but to the city treasury as well."

LINCOLNWOOD, ILL., a thriving suburb of Chicago, passed a law requiring was incinerator installation in all homes. Now, GAMA says, this community boasts the highest health rate and the lowest tax rate for suburbs of Cook County.

Other residential areas near Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee have similar ordinances and report similar results. Even the U. S. government recognized the potential gains from gas-fired incineration when it provided the equipment for all homes at the Air Force training station in Cheyenne, Wyo. Elsewhere, individual builders are including gas incinerators as standard equipment in new homes.

Properly installed and vented incinerators have the blessing of fire prevention authorities, too. In fact, GAMA points out, the incinerator is regarded as a means of preventing accumulation of trash which cause or feed many fires. It also eliminates the smoky backyard waste burner and the need for offensive garbage dumps at the city limits.

Gas-fired incinerators range in capacity from one to four bishels and may be installed in the utility rooms, basement or garage by simple connection with the gas supply already used for cooking and other household functions. At residue of combustion in the incinerator is trapped in a bottom tray, and is used by many as a garden fertilizer.

Even in areas where hundreds of incinerators are used, there is no air pollution. And since only tin cans and other non-combustibles must be collected, the cost of city garbage collection problems is held to a minimum.

Small A-Power Plant Abuilding

Lots Of Corn And Hog Talk Awaiting Ohio Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ohio congressmen will be listening to a lot of talk this week about wheat, corn and hogs.

The powerful Ohio Farm Bureau is sending a delegation of 50 to Washington today. It is an annual affair giving the bureau a chance to voice its views to the people who write the laws.

Obviously, the farmers will be mainly interested in the new Democratic farm bill and its general provision to restore fixed price supports on basic commodities.

On that point, the Ohio Farm Bureau in the past has preferred the "variable" variety passed by the Republicans last year.

But the bill also contains a feature of special interest to Ohio wheat farmers—the highly controversial two price system.

The Ohio farmers in Washington next week probably will strongly object to this feature—if they follow the policy set forth by the parent American Farm Bureau Federation.

The proposed system can be stated fairly briefly: It would provide 100 per cent price supports to wheat sold domestically for human consumption. But wheat sold for feed or abroad would have no supports at all.

Opponents, like Rep. John Beamer, say the two-price system on wheat would mean "unfair competition" for every farmer who grows corn or other feed grain.

The argument is that with feed wheat selling on the open market the price would drop so low that farmers would start feeding their livestock wheat. Then the corn price would drop, says opponents, and any farmer depending on corn as a cash crop—a common thing on Ohio farms—would be in bad shape.

But, Rep. James Polk (D-Ohio), a supporter of the two-price wheat system and charter member of the Ohio Farm Bureau, says such fears are vastly exaggerated.

"I don't claim to have any crystal ball," Polk told a reporter. "But I can't see where anything like that could happen to the corn market."

For one thing, he said that corn will always remain the No. 1 feed for hogs and cattle.

"Wheat is all right for a growing animal," said Polk, "but you have to have corn for fattening. Also, wheat is not a very satisfactory feed for hogs. They don't digest it well."

There is a vast disagreement, too, on the effect of selling wheat at open market prices abroad.

Beamer, for one, says this would amount to "dumping" and "unfair competition with wheat growers in every other country in the world."

Polk can't see that, either. On the contrary, he says, it would "enable us to recapture some of our foreign export markets."

The whole system, he says, is aimed at "discouraging overproduction of wheat."

In any case, Congress will have to decide on this and other aspects of the farm bill, probably after Easter recess.

Even if it passes, the bigger wheat farmers would have the last word. Those with 15 acres or more of wheat would vote in a referendum and say whether they prefer the present system or the two-price system.

Korean Exchange Pilot In Crash

BERYL, Utah (AP)—A Korean exchange pilot crashed a jet plane into the roof of a railroad section bunkhouse in a central Utah desert area yesterday, then was ejected from the cockpit before the plane hit the ground and was demolished.

The pilot, 1st Lt. Kyo Ahn Lee, 24, escaped serious injury. He was flying a jet from Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nev.

Four railroad men who had just entered the bunkhouse were frightened but unharmed when the plane took the roof off.

Holland Planning Parley For Twins

OIERSCHOT, Netherlands (AP)—This town of 7,750 population—including 63 sets of twins—is afraid of being forgotten when a new main highway bypasses it this year or next.

In order to keep on the map the town is holding a European congress for twins May 19-20. Thus far 300 sets of twins have said they will participate and 1,000 are hoped for.

A European convention of twins is planned in Oirschot every two years. Prizes will be awarded the best-natured twins, the oldest, the most musical—and to the pair least resembling each other.

"I don't claim to have any crystal ball," Polk told a reporter. "But I can't see where anything like that could happen to the corn market."

For one thing, he said that corn

Korean Exchange Pilot In Crash

BERYL, Utah (AP)—A Korean exchange pilot crashed a jet plane into the roof of a railroad section bunkhouse in a central Utah desert area yesterday, then was ejected from the cockpit before the plane hit the ground and was demolished.

The pilot, 1st Lt. Kyo Ahn Lee, 24, escaped serious injury. He was flying a jet from Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nev.

Four railroad men who had just entered the bunkhouse were frightened but unharmed when the plane took the roof off.

Goldfish Pond Claims Lad, 4

CINCINNATI (AP)—Jerry Brown, 4, was playing in a neighbor's backyard yesterday afternoon. Jerry slipped on some wet grass, fell in a goldfish pond and drowned.

He was the son of Oscar and Irene Fern Brown. The circular pool is eight feet in diameter and is three feet deep.

Vice Trial Booked

AKRON (AP)—April 11 has been set as the date for the second trial growing out of a number of gambling indictments returned by the grand jury.

Holland Planning Parley For Twins

OIRSCHOT, Netherlands (AP)—This town of 7,750 population—including 63 sets of twins—is afraid of being forgotten when a new main highway bypasses it this year or next.

In order to keep on the map the town is holding a European congress for twins May 19-20. Thus far 300 sets of twins have said they will participate and 1,000 are hoped for.

A European convention of twins is planned in Oirschot every two years. Prizes will be awarded the best-natured twins, the oldest, the most musical—and to the pair least resembling each other.

Storm Kills Man

PAINESVILLE (AP)—Acting Coroner John W. Davis ruled yesterday that the death of James Tesar, 56, was accidental. His body was found in a ditch after the week-end snow storm.

Landlords Cited

CLEVELAND (AP)—In a "get-tough" move against substandard tenements, the city law department yesterday filed warrants against 24 landlords.

14-K saves the day!

*Ideas suggested by Robert Plummer 527 Lillian Drive Cincinnati, Ohio

It's time the tulips showed some buds.

They couldn't all have turned out buds! (Guess who dug the bulbs away?)

But "14-K" saves the day!

One sip tells you... "14-K" saves the day! And the last cooling swallow confirms it... you're tasting beer at its golden best. And that's reason enough to call it "14-K!" But the name actually comes from the remarkable finishing process we named Process 14-K. That's what puts the final brilliant touch on Hudepohl's famous flavor... and brings you beer at its golden best!

YOUR GUARANTEE OF BEER AT ITS GOLDEN BEST...

Golden HUDEPOHL Beer

*Send in your ideas for another "14-K Saves the Day" cartoon to our ad men (The Hudepohl Brewing Company, Box 423, Cincinnati, Ohio). Winners receive artist's original cartoon for their ideas. Try it!

Look for this seal of purity, brilliance and genuine satisfaction in every golden drop.
